Pilgrim's progress

THE THANKSGIVING holidays meant one thing to Carmel River School kindergartener Lissie Strange — turkey. It is hard to tell from this photo (above) whether the youngster is not happy with the job she did constructing her paper turkey or if she thinks her holiday meal will taste like paper. Meanwhile the fifth-grade class at Carmel River School decided Thanksgiving week was a good time to put together a display of fall colors and traditions. Here (left to right), Shay Cambell, Lansi Brockmire, Megan Parker, Sweeta Rahmati, Sara Frye, Jill Buchholz, Chris Burnham and Angela Smith have fun working together on the display. Supports walkway

Dear Editor:

I am in favor of establishing a walkway on Scenic Drive, starting at Eighth Ave., and going south as far as the city of Carmel-by-the-Sea can legally place it. I am a frequent walker along this route. The traffic is heavy and no one is enforcing the speed limit on this route.

I have been a resident of Carmel for 9½ years.

Astonished at mayor

Dear Editor:

The tone and content of Mr. Eastwood's first Mayor's Report in The Pine Cone are astonishing. For someone who campaigned almost solely on a platform of "bringing the community together" and treating those who come before Carmel's governing bodies with courtesy and consideration, his words and behavior are very much at odds with those pledges.

I attended both the Town Hall meeting and the city council meeting to which he refers. At the former, Eastwood was Mr. Geniality himself as long as those speaking up didn't touch on the way he's conducting the office of mayor, e.g., appointments he's made which certainly have the appearance of a conflict of interest, the effort being made to revise the city's General Plan more to the liking of the business community, etc. Residents who brought up these and similar issues were subject to frequent interruptions by Eastwood, one-liners aimed at holding the speaker up to ridicule, charges of being "destructive," and finally to being cut off. What is the purpose of a Town Hall meeting if not to air issues from all points of view, not just those the mayor considers "constructive"?

As to Eastwood's lengthy diatribe against hard-working Councilman Jim Wright, what a peculiar way to "bring the community together"! In the council meeting referred to in The Pine Cone, Councilman Wright, far from engaging in "very sarcastic rhetoric about the General Plan Committee" as charged, was quietly expressing his real concerns about some of the proposed revisions of the city's General Plan. Obviously he had done his homework, for he read excerpts from the present plan, then compared them with the committee's new wording, which invariably showed a strong tilt toward the business community rather than the residents. The mayor's repeated attempts to silence Wright were unbecoming to say the least.

Those who voted for this big-time movie actor to become mayor of little Carmel had a right to expect that the office and all public meetings would be conducted fairly and with dignity. Perhaps Eastwood should take to heart the concluding words of his own Mayor's Report, that we should "all expend a little effort towards peace and harmony in the community," as promised in his campaign.

Thought-provoking sight

Dear Editor:

What do 30,000 nuclear warheads and 5,000 missiles, airplanes and submarines look like? More than 35,000 clay models of these weapons, representing the U.S. nuclear arsenal, make up the outdoor exhibit in Monterey's Custom House Plaza. The visual impact of this many weapons, each pointing to the sky, is a unique and thought-provoking experience.

I hope thousands of Monterey County residents experienced this exhibit before it moved to Detroit Nov. 12.

Working together

Dear Editor:

All too often the business sector does not get recognized for its support of the community. Saturday, Nov. 1, was a perfect example of the business sector working together with a non-profit organization for the improvement of the greater community.

Carmel Plaza presented a fashion show coordinated by Phyllis Hubbard. Judy Cole, public relations director of the Plaza, gave Leadership Monterey Peninsula a check for $1,000 for hosting the event.

LMP received a contribution to its program which helps provide future leaders with the knowledge, opportunity and encouragement to assume responsible roles in the civic and professional community of the Monterey Peninsula and Carmel Plaza benefited from the publicity.

Doubletree Hotel, Monterey Bay Inn, Carmel Plaza and Shirley Holt all contributed to make this a successful community event.

Debbie Tiernan, general manager of the Carmel Plaza, worked with three business women who serve on the LMP Board of Directors, Deanna Adolph, Toni Doyle and Dottie Surdi, to organize the event.

I am grateful to all those who attended the fashion show and thereby helped to support LMP. The fashion show was a fine example of the business sector working together with a non-profit organization for mutual benefit. I hope the community continues to work together.

SDI a cruel hoax

Dear Editor:

"Why are the Soviets afraid of Star Wars? It is just a shield to protect people from nuclear missiles." What a cruel hoax!

Even is SDI could be made to work, it would not provide protection for people, as Reagan promises, but might protect 90 percent of U.S. missilies. If a U.S. first strike destroyed most Soviet missiles on the ground, SDI might intercept 75 percent of their remaining missiles in flight. But if SDI intercepted any nuclear missiles in flight, the plutonium they contain would descend in a cloud of death surrounding the earth. There are no winners in a nuclear war.

Scientists working on SDI admit it cannot provide a protective shield for the population but say research may develop technology for exotic new weapons. This would drastically escalate the arms race at a crippling cost to our shakey economy and disastrous national debt. In our country's best interest it is far preferable to improve the civilian economy rather than squander resources on weapons which must never be used if life on earth is to survive.

Our most distinguished scientists advise that the best way to stop the arms race is to ban nuclear testing. Absolute technological verification is now possible.

The Soviets are proving their desire to end the arms race by their unilateral test moratorium for more than a year, hoping the U.S. will join them. It is tragic that Reagan does not even consider a test ban, thus casting doubt on his sincerity and true intent.

Walkway is needed

I'M GOING to get right to the point. Phase II of the Carmel Beach Restoration Project is a well-researched and thought-out, aesthetically-pleasing, safe, protective and necessary addition to Carmel's shoreline and we urge the Carmel City Council to give the go-ahead for its development.

I'm sure many of you have read and heard the pro and con arguments, attended the Town Hall and city council meetings in which it was discussed, made some input into the EIR, written letters, and even answered telephone polls on the subject. It's time for action.

Phase II (Phase I, which consisted primarily of protecting and shoring up the banks along Scenic Road, has been completed), entails a landscaped walkway, access stairs, benches, new signs, fewer parking spaces and a narrowed roadway — at a cost estimated at $750,000.

There appears to be three basic objections: 1. That it's too costly or the costs aren't justified. 2. It should be kept natural; don't change the area. 3. It takes away parking spaces and narrows the road. Let's look at each objection.

The cost, yes, is high, but capital improvements, especially of this scope, aren't going to be cheap. The Coastal Conservancy has already agreed to grant the city $200,000, perhaps more. The remaining funds will be paid by the city and have already been budgeted. These funds will come out of the hostelry tax — a tax paid for primarily by tourists who visit our fair city.

Now if we aren't going to use these funds for civic and capital improvements (and are earmarked for such improvements), what are we going to use them on — buying bottled water? In fact why even have the tax in the first place if we aren't going to use them to benefit and improve the community? The city of Carmel is relatively well off for its size — what other city of 4,800 has a budget of $6 million? Let's use it while we can to better the city.

It's been suggested to keep it "natural." What is that supposed to mean? If that stretch of shoreline had been kept natural — which I assume to mean no maintenance, repairs or improvements — Scenic Road would now be washed up on some beach in Japan and San Antonio Street residents would be propping their homes up with stilts.

As coastal expert David Shonman said at the Town Hall meeting, pristine Carmel Beach is an "illusion." Man has helped it look as beautiful as it is by protecting and shoring up the bluffs by adding new vegetation, rip-rap, even supports to keep Scenic Road from becoming Scenic Bluffs.

Loss of parking spaces and narrowing of roadway. The new figure — loss of 42 out of 146 existing spaces — represents a compromise. Parking was put back into the project after complaints from residents. The loss of parking on Scenic is not going to create a mad rush to other streets in the area. Visitors don't usually have the time to search out parking spaces on other streets or the inclination to park a couple blocks away. Residents may prefer walking once they know there are fewer spaces — and that there is a safe and pleasant walkway and easy access to the beach. The critical need for parking is in the downtown, not on Scenic Road.

The road is already one-way, narrowing it will not create a problem, what it creates is a safe and convenient place for people to walk or jog, even just stand or sit there — bicyclists and skateboarders will not be allowed on the walkway, in fact will be difficult for them to operate on because the surface will be made of decomposed granite rather than asphalt. Bicyclists and skateboarders have to, by law, follow the rules of the road anyway.

The walkway will not only be a community asset and resource enjoyed by all, but will protect the bluffs from both human and nature's destructive forces, and when you can get all those elements out of a civic project, the costs are truly justified.

Fate of walkway rests in city council's hands

By DAVID LELAND

AS THE storm season nears, the Carmel City Council will once again consider the fate of Phase II of the Carmel Beach Restoration Project at its Dec. 2 meeting.

The city council will gather at 4 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 2, at the Carmel Woman's Club, located at San Carlos Street and Ninth Avenue.

Phase II of the project calls for a landscaped walkway with benches and access stairways along Scenic Road, and will probably result in the loss of 42 out of the existing 146 parking spaces. The total estimated cost for the project stands at $750,000, which will be partially funded by state grant money and from the city's general fund hostelry tax.

In November, the council moved to wait until December to make its recommendation on the proposed project. This delay was made partly to assimilate the information by residents at the Town Hall meeting, held the night before last month's city council meeting. At that time, in a vote tallied by a show of hands, residents expressed strong support for the project.

In the month-long interim, Greg D'Ambrosio, director of administrative services, has moved ahead with a grant application from the Calfornia Coastal Conservancy, which will help finance the project. At press time, the conservancy had indicated by telephone it would fund $250,000 of the project, but no formal contract had been offered.

Also, the The Pine Cone, in an independent phone survey conducted Nov. 14 through 17, had callers showing an overwhelming support for going ahead with the restoration project. Of the 143 residents polled, 69 percent favored the project, while only 31 percent opposed it.

SCENIC ROAD is not only a popular and pleasant drive for cars, but a popular route for walkers, joggers, bicylists and skateboarders, a cause for concern by residents and something the Carmel City Council hopes to address through Phase II of the Carmel Beach Restoration Project at its Dec. 2 meeting. (Holly McFarland photo.)

ALSO AT its December meeting the council will consider:

• A resolution authorizing the city to spend a maximum of $2,000 to employ a traffic engineer to draw an analysis of the proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway Improvement Project environmental impact statement (EIS).

The proposed freeway project would attempt to improve traffic capacity on Highway 1 from the Carmel River Bridge to Highway 68 by widening the road. The estimated price tag for the work stands at about $30 million.

Currentiy there is also a draft of the EIS available for public examinaton at the Harrison Memorial Library.

• Will receive a report from City Atty. Don Freeman regarding alternatives for amending the ordinance relating to entertainment and alcoholic beverages.

At the November meeting of the council owners of the Studio Theater asked for permission to sell on-sale alcohol. Currently, Carmel has an ordinance which makes it illegal to sell liquor where there is live entertainment.

There had been some question how this would affect other businesses which offer entertainment and whether this was an ordinance which only affected this particular business.

• The Traffic Committee will present its report to the council which will recommend two changes to the area between Fourth Avenue and Linclon Street.

The changes will have the city post 15 mph signs on this stretch of road, while also turning it into a one-way street.

• The city will also consider a resolution authorizing the mayor to enter into an agreement with Peabody Marketing regarding the feasibility study for the proposed Stanton Theater at Sunset Center.

This matter also has been held over from the November meeting at which time City Administrator Doug Schmitz had cited doubts that the survey had not addressed a projected annual deficit at the theater.

Schmitz said a question regarding this issue has been added to the questionnaire. He added that Peabody Marketing hopes to begin the feasibility study by mid-December with an estimated completion date of "about 12 weeks."

• The council will receive a recommendation from the planning commission with regard to the refund of in-lieu parking monies paid by the Mediterranean Market Partnership. (See related story this issue.)

• The general plan committee will also present its revised circulation element of the general plan. The report asks for a greater emphasis on seeking an overall solution to the parking problem and to improve downtown parking.

Any recommendations heard by the council by the general plan committee will be forwarded to the planning commission for study. After the planning commission has made it revisions, the matter is put before the council for its final consideration.

Valley master plan nearing end of road...or is it?

By DAVID LELAND

IMMEDIATELY AFTER the Monterey County Board of Supervisors unanimously approved the environmental impact report for the Carmel Valley Master Plan Tuesday, it began public testimony on the master plan itself and with it heard more of the same problems.

'It seems to me perfectly clear that President Reagan did not trade arms to Iran in exchange for the hostages,' said Rod Holmgren, member of the Carmel River Advisory Committee, sarcastically. 'It's equally clear that Odello East is not in Carmel Valley. Anyone who's familiar with the lands on the sides of Carmel River must agree that the Odello property is indeed in Carmel Valley and does indeed belong in the Carmel Valley Master Plan.'

For the board, it appears there is no easy solution to a few lasting questions which have crept up since the master plan was first rejected by Monterey County Superior Court Judge Richard Silver in 1981 and again last year.

It still must decide if the Odello land should be included in the boundaries of the plan, whether the lots of record are a correct indication of how much building should be allowed and if the water and sewage options are substantial enough for the amount of planned building.

The board heard 21 speakers addressing concerns during the meeting, which lasted more than three hours. Tuesday marked the end of public testimony for the plan, but the board said it will still accept written responses.

The next scheduled board meeting will be at 1:30 p.m., Tuesday, Dec. 9, in the supervisors chambers in the courthouse in Salinas. The board also has scheduled a 3 p.m. meeting on the master plan for Dec. 16, if needed.

AS EXPECTED, the Odello property was an emotional point, as concerned valley residents attempted to reverse the planning commission's recommendation of exclusion of the Odello property east of Highway 1 from the plan.

Earlier this month the planning commission dropped 5-3 the Odello's proposed 162-unit residential-complex, restaurant and farmer's market from the valley's boundaries.

"It seems to me perfectly clear that President Reagan did not trade arms to Iran in exchange for the hostages," said Rod Holmgren, member of the Carmel River Advisory Committee, sarcastically. "It's equally clear that Odello East is not in Carmel Valley.

"Anyone who's familiar with the lands on the sides of Carmel River must agree that the Odello property is indeed in Carmel Valley and does indeed belong in the Carmel Valley Master Plan."

Holmgren's argument concurred with the point made by Danny Worth, representing the Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club: the Odello land affects the valley's watershed, airshed and traffic patterns.

But for Carmel Valley attorney Alexander Henson, the master plan comes nowhere near an accurate appraisal of the valley's problems.

"The key problems of developing Carmel Valley have not been addressed," he said. "You will either transform a discreet geographical area into a quagmire like San Jose or you will not."

He cited the "key" problems of the valley as transportation, water and sewage.

Henson said one of the loopholes in both the EIR and the master plan is they do not look at the realistic side of providing accurate services as the valley becomes further subdivided — primarily money.

"An economic feasibility study needs to be considered," he said. He added that it is one thing to say the county will provided adequate water and sewage, but questioned where the money would come from a project such as the development of the new San Clemente Dam.

Joining Henson in his argument was attorney Richard Rosenthal, who also disagreed with both the EIR and the proposed master plan.

Specifically, Rosenthal expressed doubts that the master plan's evaluation and allocation plan was stringent enough. He said that because of the number of exemptions in the plan, that during the first year alone more than 500 units could be built.

City recreation commission has an eye toward future

By DAVID LELAND

WHEN MAYOR Clint Eastwood appoints seven members to the new recreation commission at the special city council meeting Dec. 1 it will mark the end of an era for the four original members of the now-disbanded recreation committee.

However, it is not with sadness that the former committee views its demise, but rather with a feeling of a job well done, with an eye towards the future.

"It was with elation, a self-congratulatory meeting," said Harriet Roundtree, referring to the mood at the committee's final meeting Nov. 13. "We've come this far and now we're ready to turn it over."

The Carmel City Council will hold the special meeting at 8 a.m. Monday, Dec. 1, in the city council chambers in city hall, located on Monte Verde Street at Ocean Avenue to address emergency water issues (see related story), and the recreation commission appointments before its regularly-scheduled meeting Dec. 2.

One of the goals the recreation committee has worked toward is the formation of a recreation commission to carry on the recreational wants and needs of the community. Its wish came true in October when the city council enacted an ordinance forming the commission, to be composed of private citizens.

Twenty-six applications have been filed for the volunteer position at city hall, according to Jeanne Brehmer, city clerk.

Three of these applications are former members of the recreation committee. They are: Pat Sipple, Roundtree and Merv Sutton.

The commission will have several duties. The first is to finish amending a provision to the city's general plan which will further identify Carmel's needs on a recreational level. This is a job which was started by the recreation committee several years ago.

The commission will also work with the recreation director, the Carmel Youth Center and the district's schools.

Also serving as "ex officio" members on the commission will be the city administrator, Doug Schmitz and school superintendent, Bob Infelise. These two will attend all commission meetings, but will not have the right to vote.

Carmel City Council to review urgency water ordinance

By NANCY HILLS

IT'S WATER again in a special meeting of the Carmel City Council.

At 8 a.m., Monday, Dec. 1 in the Carmel City Council Chambers, the council will consider extending the urgency ordinance that prohibits new construction or new businesses which increase water use in Carmel.

The ordinance was first imposed in August when the city was told that it had used 99.99 percent of its annual water allocation from the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District. The ordinance was to keep water use from increasing and possibly effect a reduction in the city's use.

City staff, according to City Administrator Doug Schmitz, is working on a permanent ordinance for the council to act on in January. If that ordinance is approved, it will replace the urgency ordinance as law.

The Carmel Planning Commission must first review the permanent ordinance, which it is scheduled to do so Dec. 17, then it will go before the council in January. If the council approves it then, it must wait 30 days before "reading" it again. In another 30 days, it would become law, which would put the date in March.

However, the city hopes the allocation problem will be settled before then either through a lawsuit filed against the water management district or negotiations with that agency.

The planning commission continues to process applications to completion, both residential and commercial, but projects that are prohibited by the ordinance are not issued their final permits. Many major developers say the moratorium is making their financial backers nervous and hesitant to commit to the projects.

The ordinance was first approved for 45 days on Aug. 11 when figures from California-American Water Co. showed metered water use in the city from July 1, 1985 to June 31, 1986 — the water year — was at 99.99 percent of the 1,030.8 acre feet annual allotment from the water management district. Forty-five days is mandated by law as the minimum allowed for the first passage of an urgency ordinance.

If Carmel reaches or exceeds 100 percent usage of its allocation, the water district can stop setting water meters in the city.

An audit of Cal-Am's figures, by Cal-Am itself, showed that Carmel was actually at 100.4 percent of its allocation during the water year, however, the water board has not acted to impose its own moratorium because it considers the numbers to have already been reviewed.

As required by district law, compliance with the allocation must be reviewed once a year, which the district did in August. At that time their information had Carmel below its allocation.

A REFINED version of the 45-day urgency ordinance was approved for 65 days, the legal limit for a second approval, on Sept. 22.

Legally, an urgency ordinance must be approved for one year the third time it is reinstated, according to Schmitz, but it can be usurped by a permanent ordinance.

In the meantime, Carmel has filed a lawsuit against the water district challenging the allocation system which divides the water supply, both future and current, between the seven political jurisdictions within its boundaries.

Carmel's suit claims that the allocation involves the district in illegal land use planning and should have been accompanied by an environmental impact report when it was set in 1981. It also states that the original statistics and assumptions used to set the allocation were flawed and inaccurate.

Because of the lawsuit, the urgency ordinance the council will consider on Dec. 1 will include a "sunset clause," Schmitz said, that states the ordinance is suspended if Carmel wins the lawsuit or the district abandons the allocation system.

The water district is currently reviewing the allocation with representatives from the planning departments of its jurisdictions.

THE URGENCY ordinance will also include a provision for bi-monthly review by the council of water use in the city.

Since the water year figures in August, according to Staff Planner Brian Roseth, Cal-Am's figures show Carmel's percent use of its water allocation to be at 99.2 percent for August, 99.1 in September and 99.4 percent in October.

Along with the building moratorium, the council will also reconsider an ordinance that mandates Carmel develop a 10 percent reserve of its allocation within five years. The reserve is to increase by 2 percent a year.

When the reserve set for that year is exceeded, the building permit moratorium is to be reinstated. This year's goal is a reserve of 2 percent which would allows the city to use 98 percent of its water allocation.

If the council approves the urgency ordinance Dec. 1, projects that will continue not to receive building permits include:

- Adding a hot tub.
- Splitting a tub/shower into two facilities (constitutes a new bathroom).
- Adding a guest house.
- Enlarging a kitchen and adding new fixtures.

Commercial projects that will not be allowed to proceed to completetion if the ordinance is reinstated are:

- New use permits or licenses that increase employees.
- New business licenses or use permits for high water users such as restaurants, hairdressers, florists, etc.
- Remodels that increase landscaping area.
- Construction that adds floor space or divides shop spaces.

Projects that would receive a building permit are:

- Replacement of existing structures, without the addition of new bathrooms, dwellings or additional water fixtures.
- Adding a deck or garage.
- Enlarging a kitchen with no new fixtures.
- Adding a den or large storage area.
- Adding a shower to existing tub — if it saves water.
- Adding a bedroom.

In the commercial area, applications that would be allowed to be completed:

- Most use permits and licenses.
- Building facade remodels.
- Signs.
- Remodels changing landscaping to native or drought-tolerant plants.

Several residential homes and larger building projects have been put on hold while the city waits for a solution to water allocation problem.

Those larger projects include Mayor Clint Eastwood's proposed office/retail complex on San Carlos Street, Robert D'Isidoro's development of the Grunion Run property on Fourth Avenue between Mission and San Carlos streets, Joseph McEldowney's condominiums on Junipero Avenue (he has requested a waiver from the city), and Earl Walls' condominiums also on Junipero Avenue.

Many projects have received final approval from the planning commission but cannot begin construction until the water issue is settled.

College/career center schedules final 'talk'

THE COLLEGE/Career Center at Carmel High School has scheduled the final "college talk," information on various colleges, at the center.

The center, which aids students and parents in the college application process, is open Monday through Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. and is staffed by trained volunteers.

The final college represented will be Boston University at 9 a.m. Friday, Dec. 5.

Apartments, commercial division face planners

By NANCY HILLS

APARTMENTS OVER Dansk on Ocean Avenue and another division of a single commercial space will be two of the issues the Carmel Planning Commission will consider at its Dec. 3 meeting.

The commission will meet Wednesday in Carmel City Council Chambers directly after its tour. The tour begins at 3 p.m. and the meeting will start when the commissioners return.

Other major items on the agenda are use permits for an art gallery, gift store and dry cleaners.

• The commission will have it first review of Carmel property owner Ted Leidig's application to add second-story residences in the Central Commercial District. According to the application, Leidig plans to build three two-bedroom and three one-bedroom apartments over the Dansk and Hanson Gallery buildings on the corner of Ocean Avenue and San Carlos Street. One of the apartments will be an affordable unit.

The original application requested seven apartments, but that exceeded the density in the zone, explained Staff Planner Brian Roseth, which allows a maximum of six.

While reviewing the application for density and land use, the commissioners will have to consider Carmel's own water allotment system set up to divide the unused portion of the city's water allocation from the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District.

The city's own allocation system divides the water among the zones and the type of development considered desirable. An example of that process is 12 ac. ft. set aside for the development of the R-4 zone.

However, Carmel's water use has fluctuated between 99 and 100 percent of its allocation from the water district. The city has filed a lawsuit against the water district challenging the district allocation system and has imposed its own building moratorium in order to reduce water consumption.

Until the suit is settled, it is unknown how much is left for further building.

Even if the district allocation is lifted, Roseth said, it must be determined how much water is left of the city's internal allotment for residences in the Central Commercial District. Roseth added, however, that there is a great deal of water left in the allotment for affordable housing.

Leidig's application is one of three he has submitted to the city to construct residences above his existing buildings. Other proposed building sites are above the Village Corner restaurant, corner of Dolores Street and Sixth Avenue, and second-story apartments above the Court of the Fountains on the west side of Mission Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues. These plans will be considered at a later date.

• Another subdivision of an existing commercial space is scheduled for review by the commission this Wednesday.

Jack Hakim, owner of Scandia Restaurant, has applied to divide the Carmel Vintage Shoppe on eastside of Dolores Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues.

The application triggers the master use permit which states any increase of commercial spaces brings the entire building under review for adequate parking and non-conforming uses.

If parking is considered inadequate, and spaces cannot be found or constructed on- or off-site, the applicant must pay in-lieu fees at approximately $21,000 a parking space.

However, the Carmel Planning Commission recently decided to return approximately $126,000 of in-lieu fees charged when The Nature Company and Books, Inc. spaces were created on Ocean Avenue. The commission stated that increasing commercial spaces without an increasing in square footage does not add to the parking problem in Carmel.

• The commissioners will also consider an application for a dry cleaners on the westside of Lincoln Street between Seventh and Eighth avenues. The cleaners would replace a travel agency and a dentist's office.

The dry cleaners will do some cleaning and all of the steam pressing on the premises, according to the application.

Roseth explained that applicants Yung Choi and Tae Yoo said the new dry cleaning process they will use utilizes non-flammable chemicals, which could reduce the fire safety concerns on the application.

Other concerns, Roseth said, will be in-and-out traffic and the close proximity of the business to the residential district. Water use will "probably be all right," he added, since it will be replacing a dentist office, a business with a high water use.

• Carol and Ira Pomeroy have applied for a broker-style art gallery in the former location of the House of Sweden on Lincoln Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues.

The gallery, according to the application, will sell the works of many different artists in oil, watercolor, acrylics and sculpture.

The space the Pomeroys have applied for was not previously occupied by an art gallery and the policy of the prior commission was to deny such applications if it did not meet the standards of contributing something new to the art community in Carmel and/or is a single artist gallery — particularly as a working studio.

• Basil Ridino has applied for a gift shop use permit on the east side of San Carlos Street between Sixth and Fifth avenues.

Carmel Fire Dept. to kick off drive

THE CARMEL Fire Department will start its annual drive to raise food and toys for needy families on the Monterey Peninsula this Christmas.

The annual drive begins Friday, Nov. 28 and continues until Christmas Eve. The fire department will be accepting donations in the form of canned and non-perishable foods, workable toys, money and other appropriate gifts. The donated items will be distributed by the Salvation Army.

Donations may be dropped off between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. at Carmel Fire Station on Sixth Street between San Carlos and Mission.

For more information contact Mitch Kastros at 624-1718.

Recovery Center $125,000 richer thanks to Eastwood

By DAVID LELAND

AN ADOLESCENT drug and alcohol treatment center at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula moved one step closer Monday as Mayor Clint Eastwood donated $100,000 toward the cause.

The adolescent treatment center will be the only unit catering solely to the needs of youth on the peninsula, according to Tom Tonkin, executive director of Community Hospital. The unit will be housed on the second floor of the existing adult alcohol and drug Recovery Center, located on Hartnell Street in downtown Monterey.

In a brief ceremony held on the steps of the Recovery Center, Eastwood first was presented a check for $100,000 by Mike Frankovich, past president of Variety Clubs International. The check represented proceeds from a television special Eastwood filmed Sept. 26 and 27 in Los Angeles, which will be aired at 8 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 30, on CBS.

Variety Clubs International is a charitable organization of people in the entertainment industry formed in the 1920s primarily because of concerns for the welfare of children. Frankovich said, since its inception, the organization has donated more than $500 million to various hospital causes.

"It is not only what he's done for the motion picture industry, but for kids around the world," said Frankovich, as he presented the $100,000 check to Eastwood.

Frankovich, former head of production for Columbia Pictures for 15 years, is probably best known in the industry for producing the 1962 film Lawrence of Arabia.

While Eastwood jokingly said "I hope you don't spend it all in one place," as he presented the check to Dr. Ted Hooker, representing the hospital board of trustees, that's exactly what will happen to the donation.

Hospital officials estimate the total cost of the adolescent unit at $519,000, of which the Community Hospital Foundation already has $189,000 on hand. This leaves $200,000 to be raised.

Actually, the figure needed for construction and renovation costs now stands at $175,000. Frankovich, in a show of support from Variety Clubs International, donated a check for $25,000 to be put towards the project.

"In view of the fact that Clint has done so much for us, I have decided to make a $25,000 donation," Frankovich said

It is hoped the 20-bed unit, which will be known as the Clint Eastwood Youth Program, will be in operation by Oct. 1, 1987, according to Bob Miskimon, spokesman for Community Hospital.

Plans for the adolescent treatment center include development of a recreational space on the grounds to include basketball and volleyball courts, picnic and family areas. In addition, the 8,600-square foot renovation of the second floor of the building will house semi-private rooms, a classroom and teacher's office, family room and group rooms.

"By making this generous gift toward our efforts to establish an adolescent drug and alcohol treatment center, Mr. Eastwood is making a contribution to the youth of our community," Hooker said. "There is a real need for a program of this type, and we are extremely grateful to both Mr. Eastwood and to Variety Clubs International for their help."

THIS WEEK plans for an adolescent alcohol and drug treatment center at Community Hospital moved a step closer with a $100,000 donation from Mayor Clint Eastwood. The check was from proceeds of Eastwood's upcoming Nov. 30 television special, by the Variety Clubs International. Also shown from left to right: Tom Tonkin, executive director of Community Hospital, Mike Frankovich, producer and former president of Variety Clubs International, and Dr. Ted Hooker, representing the hospital board of trustees. Carmel Red Cross starts fund drive

THE CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA Chapter of the American Red Cross kicked off its annual fund drive for the month of November to raise money to help offset future costs and continue to provide its services to the community.

During the last fiscal year more than 400 volunteers devoted more than 56,000 hours performing various services for the Red Cross, according to Phil Gray, chapter public relations director.

Services included: Ambulances. Hundreds of volunteers logged almost 15,000 miles answering 1,100 emergency calls in Carmel, Carmel Valley and Big Sur, for free.

Blood service. Almost 5,000 pints of blood were donated at bloodmobiles and at Community Hospital Blood Center.

Loan Closet. Crutches, walkers, wheelchairs, and baby equipment such as cribs and baby beds were loaned to the community free.

Gray added that contributions made this year will not be affected "in any way" by the new state tax laws.

For more information on how to contribute or help the Red Cross, call 624-6921.

Students get hands-on experience in sports medicine

By DAVID LELAND

SPORTS MEDICINE has found its way into the Carmel High School curriculum with students learning how the body works, how to treat it and what to look for in sports-related injuries.

Offered through the Regional Occupational Program (ROP), a career education program provided by the county, the classes are given each school day by the Sports Medicine Center of Monterey instructor, Steve Glover.

Glover, who has a master's degree in physical education with an emphasis on physical training, provides the students with both lectures on human anatomy and a chance to exhibit practical experience.

The primary thrust of the class teaches the different bones of the body and where to locate them. A typical quiz asks the question: what type of joint is the metatarsalphalangeal?

"We try to teach this class on a college level," Glover said. "This is not an easy class."

Indeed, one of the ideas which Glover tries to convey is if a student wishes to pursue a career in sports medicine, grades are of the utmost importance.

By the year 1990, Glover said, sports medicine will be more specialized than the present. In order to continue a career in this field, one will have to maintain a high grade point average throughout college to get into the graduate program.

But for the more than 30 junior and senior students in Glover's class, worries about the future are not as important as how the class immediately affects them.

"I thought it would be an interesting class to take," said junior Chris Stevenson. "If I get hurt, I'll know what to do."

The students also get to take field trips to the Sports Medicine Center and also are presented guest lectures by professionals in the field of sports medicine.

But most of all they are given "hands-on experience" with sports medicine. One day recently found the students practicing ankle taping for the second day in a row. This day found the previous tapers becoming the tapees.

In order to learn the procedure, Glover presented a slide show which gave an illustration of each stage of the taping.

There was no horseplay erupting in the classroom — this was serious business on both sides.

The taping was not just a quickie operation; the students are encouraged to do a professional job so they can gain the confidence of the injured person. Even wrinkles in the tape are verboten.

"Neatness is important," said Glover to one student while examining his taping job. "The injured person wants to feel confident that you know what you are doing."

Glover said that while his students are currently spending about 25 minutes doing a taping job, he hopes to have them down to five minutes before the end of the semester. A professional, he said, can tape an ankle in about one minute.

IT IS encouraging to see the students being able to apply high school courses to their lives while enjoying themselves. Each has his own reason for being in the class.

"I'm interested in sports," said senior Gina Iantorno. "I'm thinking of furthering my knowledge. I'd love to work at the sports medicine clinic."

Glover said four of his students from last year's classes at the high school are now interning at the clinic.

For senior Rosina Didyk, the sports medicine class offers a chance for her to practice sports medicine on herself.

"I enjoy the class because I'm a dancer," she said. "I think it's valuable information to know because I'm around injuries and I have injuries myself."

The course also stresses how to evaluate the injured athlete so as not to further their problem. The students are taught to recognize if an injury is life-threatening by looking for telltale signs of danger such as obstructed airway, cardiac arrest and respiratory failure.

They are also taught the treatment of sprains and strains along with the prevention of athletic injuries by using braces on the weak area.

While some students thought the sports medicine class would be an easy elective, it appeared no one regretted having made the choice to stay on with Glover and get down to some hard work.

"There's a lot of ROP courses that you can take," said Iantorno, as she watched a student tape up her ankle. "But this is the best."

SPORTS MEDICINE has made its way into Carmel High School's curriculum, much to the delight of the 30 students enrolled in the class. Here, Rosina Didyk and Chris Stevenson practice taping a fellow student's "sprained" ankle. Both time and neatness are taken into consideration in learning to perform this task. Cypress Swim Club to hold tryouts

THE AWARD WINNING Cypress Swim Club will hold tryouts for potential new members throughout November and December from 4 to 6 p.m. each Sunday at the Pattullo Swim Center in Seaside at 1186 Wheeler Avenue.

Potential applicants should have mastered the basic swimming strokes, and should be over seven years of age, but there is no maximum; swimmers over the age of 20 will be entered into the Cypress Masters program.

Applicants accepted will receive one month of free training in the basics of synchronized swimming, the newest Olympic sport, after which they will be invited to join the club as regular members.

The Cypress Swim Club, which was formed in 1964 at the Carmel Valley Community Center Pool, is coached by Donn Squire and Del Neel, both nationally and internationally-ranked officials of United States Synchronized Swimming and members of the board of governors of that organization. In its 22-year history, the club has fielded local, regional, national and international synchronized swimming champions.

For further information, please call the Cypress Swim Club at 659-2446.

The 'real' Thanksgiving as told by third-graders

(Editor's Note: The following letters are from children in the third-grade classes of Shirley Graham and Imogene Speiser at Tularcitos School. The students were to pretend that they were Pilgrims and had just arrived in America after their long voyage on the Mayflower. These letters are to imaginary relatives in Europe.)

Dear Cousin Bill:

When we left Europe I wanted you to come, but I'm glad you didn't. Do you want to know why? Well, if you don't want to know, I'm going to tell you anyway.

There were a whole lot of people on the ship. There was not a lot of food on the ship and I hated it! The sailors were mean to us. There was no place to play. What a bore!

When a sailor yelled "Land ho!" I was so excited, but the leader told us we had to stay on the ship until the homes were made. So we stayed on the ship.

The winter was hard. Half our colony died, but we're all right. We made friends with some Indians and we had a three-day feast. We call it Thanksgiving. There were games like "Pitch the Bar." I wish you were here.

Sincerely,
Joseph Thomas

Dear Cousin Athena:

The Mayflower (the ship) is very exciting. The ship has a big crowd. Food is getting scarce and we are living on fish as well as dried meat. A little while ago we had a storm and we were crashing from side to side. We struggled for freedom. Pots and pans rolled all over the crowd. Suddenly, the candle went out. It was pitch dark.

Soon afterwards the Speedwell broke. We were so frightened that we got sick. Seventy-six days it took, and it was boring.

One of the Pilgrims spied land. They took a smaller boat to check it out. Immediately they started chopping down wood to build cabins for the winter. The ship halted and everyone came out to a New World. They brought out six cannons. Right away one of the cabins became a hospital.

The Pilgrims were surprised to see Samoset (an Indian) to walk right in the gates.

"Welcome," said the Indian. He quickly explained that his tribe had died from a disease.

Squanto (a friend) entered. Samoset introduced Squanto. Soon afterwards we became friends. The Indians taught us how to plant corn and make traps for herring. Soon afterwards we had enough food.

The girls and boys had little time to play. The girls played "Cat's Cradle" with a ball of string. We had a feast and never forgot it.

Yours Truly,
Alexis Seccombe

Dear Uncle Thom Greenway:

My crew and I were sailing on the Mayflower. It was a long voyage. All the crew had to eat was stale biscuits and dried up meats. Soon we ran out of that. At that time we only got to eat fish. We got tired of eating fish.

Soon we were in our new world. We had to start building houses before winter came. One day two Indians came over. One of the Indians was named Samoset. He brought his friend Squanto. The Indians and some of the Pilgrim men went out to hunt for deer and wild things. The women and girls did the laundry. The boys enjoyed foot racing.

Your newphew
Eric Stalder

Dear Grandmother Molly:

When I was on the Mayflower I missed all the delicious food you make. While I was on the Mayflower there was a baby born. His name was Oceanus. There was also a very big storm and a man fell overboard and they had

Walk for Science

THE CARMEL River School recently held its second annual PTA-sponsored school-wide walkathon to help raise funds for classroom science supplies. Students from kindergarten through fifth-grade participated in the event, which called for them to walk laps for pledges. Above, first-grader Tim Uttaro puts his arms into his gait, while other students (above right) await their turn on the course. Volunteer mother Aimee Steven (right), acts as "lap counter," marking kindergartener Kevin Sickler's tally sheet while Brenna Armstrong and Kristen Goodwin look on. Weihnachtsmarkt

Every year on December 6, there's a St. Nicholas Day celebration at the Barnyard. Just like an old European-Stvle weihnachtsmarkt, the merchants set their wares on open-air tables, clowns and jugglers, musicians and singers entertain while delicious smells come from the restaurants and bakeries.

As dusk approaches, anticipation grows and the crowd senses that St. Nicholas is on his way. Suddenly, appearing from the darkness, the looming figure rides into the center coutyard on his great white horse. He raises his golden staff, and as if by magic, the magnificent Christmas tree explodes into color, festive lights blaze from every rooftop as a choir joins in song.

Truly this is one of the most memorable Christmas celebrations anywhere and a tradition that children and adults will always remember.

Third-graders tell their tales of the pilgrims and Thanksgiving to throw a rope in to get the man out of the water.

When we finally got here I thought I would die because I felt so sick and tired. Later we met some Indians. They were very kind. The one I liked best was Squanto. He showed us how to plant corn seeds. He told us not to plant them too deep. When the corn was starting to grow, birds came and were eating it. Then they had to have a guard.

Your loving granddaughter,
Lauren Picard

Dear Cousin Cristena:

On the way to the new world there was a baby born on the boat and they named it Oceanus. The soldiers had to carry a bucket around because the pilgrims would get sick on the boat. We had to eat stale bread and muffins and we got tired of eating fish.

When we got to the new world we met an Indian named Squanto. Squanto told us how to plant corn. You put fish in the dirt but don't put it deep in the dirt. Some of the Indians would go hunting for deer for dinner and we would get corn for dinner too. The Indians and Pilgrims would have a contest using their gun and arrows. They made the houses out of the trees and they brought big screws to use for the houses.

Your cousin,
Sara Chiappe

Dear Aunty Pat:

Everybody didn't get a lot of food because there wasn't good food and they got bored of eating fish. The fish wasn't as good as the cookies you made. They were so good. I like the ones with peanut butter in them. There was a baby born on the boat. He was named Oceanus after the sea. They used a big screw to hold the deck up.

When we got to the new world, all the men had to get off and help make houses. All the children and ladies had to stay on the boat. Everybody hated the ride over. When it was summer 11 houses were built. When we saw the Indians we were astonished. That's how we learned to do things like catch fish, grow corn and other things too. The men kept building and the ladies cooked and took care of the children. I had to cook and I didn't get a day off.

Your niece,
Kristen Carlson

PADRE PRATTLE

Mind athletics

TIMING, BALANCE, speed, agility, and strength are some factors that go together to create a superior physical athlete. But a participant in the Academic Decathalon must have a slightly different set of qualities to come out on top.

An Academic "Decathalete" must have a willingness to learn. Patience, self-discipline and most of all the ability to retain floods of information from last-minute cram sessions.

Held at North Salinas High Nov. 15, the seventh annual Monterey County Academic Decathalon tested the abilities of high school juniors and seniors in the following fields: math, science, economics, language/literature, social science, fine arts, essay, speech, one prepared and one impromptu. Also, an interview, and finally 10 questions about the Constitution in the Super Quiz.

There were three levels of competition based on grade point average. Up to a 2.9 qualified for the varsity category. The scholastic students ranged from a 3.0 to 3.6 GPA and above a 3.7 signified an honors student. There were nine students on the Carmel team and they brought home 13 medals, which secured a fourth-place finish for Carmel High out of the 10 competing schools.

Chris Nolte excelled in the honors division. His gold in math, silver in social science, silver in language/literature and bronze in economics made him the overall medal winner in his category.

Anne Marie DiStefano won the silver in economics and the gold in language/literature. She remarked, "I really am surprised that I lasted six hours of testing. After it was all done, my brain felt squishy for days!"

The last honors student. Gil Tostevin, dominated in the social science category. His gold medal-winning score was well above all the others.

Spunky Juiet Peck won the gold in the interview for the scholastics. Her reaction: "We were all chosen because of our diverse academic strengths, and I'm glad I came through. I'm known for my talkative energy, and it finally paid off!"

Maile Smith captured the bronze in math for the scholastics. She also agrees the day was well spent, but the only change she would have liked to have seen was in the food served for lunch. "It was a rotten trick to serve onions in the turkey sandwiches right before the speech competition!"

The third scholastic competitor, Meredith May (sound familiar?), won a bronze in the speech and a bronze in the interview portion.

The varsity level, consisting of Heather Stratton and Mark Russak didn't leave empty-handed as Heather garnered a bronze in interview.

To prepare for this big contest meant giving up lunch periods, rallies and hours after school in order to listen to different teachers give a quick rundown of all they knew in their area of expertise. Students learned about the Babylonian Captivity, the phases of the moon and Petrarch's sonnets in a few after-school sessions while watching wistfully through classroom windows as their friends left for home.

What made it all worth it for the Carmel

A turkey by any other name is...a turkey???

By MAC McDONALD

WELL PILGRIMS, it's that time of the year again — Thanksgiving Day. Time for family and friends to get together and partake of the fine fowl known — fondly of course — as the turkey.

Now most people enjoy eating turkey and even on occasion using it in reference to someone, but how many really know anything about the bird, or the word, except that it looks like a chicken on a milkshake and cheeseburger diet and gives new meaning to the word "leftovers."

So, you want to talk turkey? Let's talk turkey. But first we have to get our terminology straight — a little fowl language if you will.

First a male turkey is called a gobbler, tom or cock. A female is a hen, and a youngster of either sex is a poult. Isn't this fun?

The word "turkey" itself, as many of you undoubtedly know, can mean a variety of things: It's thought to be a shortened version of turnkey or jailer, a show that's a flop, a half dollar, a fake drug, three strikes in a row in bowling, and last, but certainly not least, a dumb or useless thing or person.

Oh, but it doesn't end there. There's also turkey shoot (an easy task), turkey trot, turkey buzzard, turkey cock, turkey mole (that's "mo-lay"), turkey stone, turkey berry, turkey blossom, turkey gnat, turkey louse, turkey corn, turkey grass (which is not to be confused with the fake drug), turkey carpet, turkey leather, turkey sponge, Turkey Red, and of course turkey nuts. If you really want to stretch it there's also Turkish taffy and Turkish towels.

And if that isn't enough (and who said it was?) our language also includes the following: Cold turkey, or to quit abruptly; to talk turkey, or discuss business; a cold turkey heel, which is shoplifters' terminology meaning to steal without any finesse; and to have a turkey on your back, which is kind of similar to having a monkey there, but actually means to be drunk.

NOW THAT you've got your terms down — there will be a quiz later — you'll probably want to bewitch and bedazzle the rest of the pilgrims assembled around the dining room table (or television as the case may be) with your extensive knowledge of turkey lore, right?

But "hey," you say, "hold on there a minute, pal, I went looking for this valuable information and all I could find was books with titles like 'How to Stuff a Turkey Without Offending the Moral Majority," and "Turkey: Enchanted Land of Towels and Taffy."

Well, fear not lost pilgrims, here's a compendium of totally irrelevant and irreverant facts and figures designed solely to amaze and amuse your by-now jaded family and friends. And if that doesn't work there's always Empty-V.

• Americans on the average eat about 11 pounds of turkey a year, up from the three pounds 40 years ago. Heck, nowadays we can do that in one sitting. In contrast we eat about 55 pounds of chicken per year.

• California is the largest producer of turkeys (no jokes, please) in the United States at last count. Minnesota is close behind, followed by North Carolina. Four states don't produce any turkeys at all: Alaska, Hawaii, Mississippi, and Nevada.

• The largest turkey on record was a 75-pounder raised by Signe Olsen of Salt Lake City in 1973, while the largest dressed turkey — and we're not talking tophat and tails here — came in at a whopping 68-and-a-half pounds! At that rate you'd be eating turkey leftovers until Easter.

• The highest price paid for a turkey was $990 for a 33-pound tom at the Arkansas State Turkey Show Dec. 3, 1955. Can you imagine paying 30 bucks for a drumstick off that butterball?

• More than 140 million turkeys are produced every year in this country, with one out of six coming out of a place in Willmar, Minn., location of the world's largest turkey hatchery.

• The speed of a wild turkey is about 15 mph, just a little faster than a squirrel (12 mph), a domestic pig (11), or a chicken (11), but much speedier than a spider (1.17 mph), a giant tortoise (.17), a three-toed sloth (.15), or a common garden snail, which clocks in at a blazing .03 mph. In contrast a man can run about 28 mph, tops.

• If you went on a Turkey Tour, and I don't know why you wouldn't want to, you'd visit the Republic of Turkey, the towns of Turkey, Texas and Turkey, N.C.; Turkey Creek, Kentucky; Turkey Point, Md.; the Turkey River in Idaho; Turkey Creek in Oklahoma; Turkey Run State Park in Indiana and Turki, U.S.S.R. You'd also want to visit Blacksburg, Va., home of the Virginia Tech — are you ready for this? — Fighting Gobblers (also known as the Hokie Gobblers. Don't ask.). Their mascot is, what else, a giant orange turkey. Would I kid you? Don't laugh, I went to college there.

NOW YOU may have heard that turkeys are dumb clucks, but weren't really sure. We wouldn't want to malign our dinner so close to chow time, but turkeys are so dumb that:

• They can starve to death because they don't know what food is and have to be taught to eat. Turkey ranchers ("Git along little turkeys??") often use brightly-colored feed or dishes so the birds will peck at them, thus inadvertently feeding themselves.

• Even after they do learn how to eat, they don't know what to eat and often start eating the litter covering the bottom of their houses. Ranchers have to spread paper or cloth over the litter so the turkeys don't harm themselves.

• Sometimes turkeys have to be put into round poultry houses because they have a tendency to pile up in corners and smother each other.

• When they get spooked they blindly fly off, often into the sides of barns, knocking themselves out or injuring themselves. They tend to frighten easily.

• When it rains they look up into the sky with their mouths open in wonder, filling their throats with water and sometimes even drowning themselves.

• Mother turkeys, known as notorious sitters, can sit on their nests until they starve.

• They often forget to squat when laying eggs and splatter the eggs on the ground, the biggest reason for the 20-30 percent turkey mortality rate.

• They have a tendency to peck at each other's feathers, which can soon become a habit in a flock and can result in cannibalism. One turkey breeding manual suggests avoiding overcrowding in the houses and to "keep the birds busy." A copy of Playbird, or the Disney Channel perhaps?

BY NOW you may be a little overstuffed on turkey lore, but leave room for a bit more.

The turkeys the pilgrims ate (four of them I'm told) were wild turkeys that were nearing extinction at the time. The turkey we now know and love came from the Aztecs of Mexico, who introduced them to the conquistadors, who took them back to Spain. The bird eventually made its way (not flying mind you) to England and thence to the New World about 100 years ago.

So, although native to North America, they had to take a roundabout route to get back here. Sort of like taking a cab in New York City.

One theory as to why they're called turkeys — they aren't even from Turkey — is that the English confused them with guinea hens that came from Africa by way of Turkey. The French, however, were no smarter. They thought the bird came from India of all places, so they called them "dinde," from "d'Inde," translated, "from India."

Incidentally, the word "gobbledygook," meaning unintelligible or bureaucratic jargon, was inspired by the sounds of the male turkey and was coined by U.S. Rep. Maury Maverick. A classic example of that is a term the CIA used to use for their assassination teams: "Health Alteration Committee." Or how about, "aerodynamic personnel decelerator?" That's a parachute if you didn't know. There's also "reverse gobbledygook," conversation that's terse and direct.

That, I believe, is enough gobbledygook for one column. Have a happy Turkey Day. Me? I'm going to go out and try to put a turkey on my back.

CARMEL HIGH School music teacher Dick Robins gets into the swing of things as he leads the Carmel High orchestra in a rehearsal for their Thursday, Dec. 4 concert at Sunset Center. The 7:30 p.m. concert marks the debut of the new concert band and orchestra and costs only $1. (Holly McFarland photo.)

Musical debut

By DEIDI KRAMER

"THE WAY you think is what the audience is going to hear," director Richard Robins told the Carmel High School Orchestra as they entered the final week of rehearsal before their premiere concert at Sunset Center.

Appropriately entitled "The New Beginning," the concert marks the formal debut of the Carmel High School Concert Band, Orchestra and Jazz Ensemble 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 4 at Sunset Center. From Mozart to Gershwin, from Latin rhythms to the March, Robins promises "something for everyone." A donation of $1 is requested.

Rep. Leon Panetta is one of several prominent local musicians performing in the concert. Panetta will be featured in a piano solo (providing, of course, that Washington doesn't call him away unexpectedly.)

Another highlight of the evening will be a guest appearance by Vincent Gomez, conductor of the Youth Orchestra of the Monterey Peninsula. Gomez will be conducting "Cambridge, An Overture for Band."

Violinist Misha Rosenker, known for his youthful ability, is preparing solo pieces by Copland and Sarasate. The 17-year-old senior plays first violin in both the Carmel High and youth orchestras.

Robins credits the progress of the Carmel High School music programs to the generosity of the Frohman Foundation for their help with funding; the Monterey Jazz Festival for the use of instruments and the talents of musicians like Bill Berry, Paul Contos, and Ken Foberg, who work with the students on a monthly basis; and the Carmel Music Boosters for their fund-raising and dedication. The boosters purchased the tuxedos and formal-attire the students will wear for the concert.

As the rehearsal neared its conclusion, Robins tapped the baton against the music stand. "I stopped you to tell you (that) you did a super job. I want you to remember exactly how you did that."

And he knows they will.

SAX PLAYER Paul Contos, a fixture at Central Coast jazz events such as the Monterey Jazz Festival and Kuumbwa jazz nightclub and a member of the Monterey Jazz Festival All-Stars, tutors young CHS alto player Hector Vasquez at rehearsal for the high school's concert Dec. 4 concert. Tularcitos School needs volunteers

By MICHELE MORSE
Tularcitos School Parent Club

NO MATTER how you look at it, volunteering is a rewarding experience and the rewards reaped from classroom volunteering are many and shared. The first and most important recipient is of course the child. Then there is the advantage for the teacher. With today's curriculum and the often large classes, most teachers and particularly those with the lower grades, are more than happy to have another adult in the classroom.

This year, as a parent volunteer in a first-grade class at Tularcitos, the greatest rewards have come my way.

To witness the first-grader, on the brink of entering into the world of the written word, has, for me, been a unique experience. The children, at this point of their education, are faced with a challenge, the success or failure of which, will affect the many years of schooling still to come. A child, in the early years of primary education, faces the day's schooling with innocence an eagerness. These children are not yet prepared to wait for answers. They need questions answered and completed tasks checked now.

Personally, I cannot remember learning to read. It seemed to just happen. So, this year, faced with my own 5-year-old, on the brink of reading and wanting, indeed demanding, help, I was at a loss. We were both frustrated. The process of education has complexities of which I stand in ignorance and awe. Being in the classroom, watching the process evolve, has been an enlightening and wonderful experience. In return for a few hours a month given, the benefits received by both my child and myself have been vast.

The other side of this story is the sheer enjoyment of just being there in the classroom, in the midst of these wonderful little people. Witnessing the quiet rapport between students and teacher. Feeling with the child the pride, wonder and enthusiasm at a task completed successfully. Knowing that your being there is freeing the teacher for those special times when one-on-one attention is vital. Sometimes this can make the difference between continuing enthusiasm and loss of interest.

There is a catch to all this, apart from my sincerely wishing to share with you my own personal experience as a classroom volunteer. We, the parent volunteers of Tularcitos, appeal to you to join our ranks. The hours and the inconvenience are few, no teaching skills are necessary and the benefits are untold. Should you have one hour a week to spare, we would love to have you spend it with the children.

The two split-reading periods are the ones most vitally in need of help. They are at 8:40 a.m. and 1:40 p.m. each day, although any hour you have to spare would be greatly appreciated. Having a child in school is not a requirement, but — if you do have a child in elementary school, particularly in first-grade, and you are concerned about the class size and the lack of classroom aides — this could be a wonderful opportunity for you to help the situation.

For more information, contact your child's teacher or the Tularcitos office at 659-2276.

Prize undergrads

MATT GONZALES (left), and Chris Nolte, both seniors at Carmel High School, have achieved distinction in the 1986 University of California at Santa Barbara Undergraduate Prize competition. Gonzales qualified in the area of physics, is a National Merit semi-finalist and plans to attend either UCSB or Harvey Mudd and major in physics. Nolte, also a National Merit semi-finalist, is undecided about a major, but is leaning toward mathematics and science. "The real significance of these two students being honored is that they are truly outstanding individuals, and the staff at Carmel High needs to receive some credit," said Carmel High School Principal Marie Ishida. The undergrad competition is designed to provide a challenge to California high School students in a format which allows them to compare their talents with other students in the state. A total of 7,734 students from 243 California high schools participated in the contest.

Never buy clothing by the pound from someone you don't know...

It was the Summer of '77 when we came upon the Spanish Paratrooper Shirts--our kind of shirts. We were an artist and a writer who enjoyed dressing our own way--in functional, well-made, natural fabric safari-style clothing. We spotted those shirts in a damp warehouse in a dark Madrid alley and had them shipped home to the U.S. ... that's when we learned never to buy clothing by the pound. When we unpacked the shirts, we also found a lot of old airplane parts...

EDITORIAL: BUYING AT HOME

Are you doing everthing possible to promote the material welfare of Carmel? Are the merchants to blame because you trade out of town? If you want to spend your money in Carmel — to boost your home town — and don't do it, tell us why.

Money sent out of town for merchandise that should be purchased at home does not come back, and we and the town suffer for the thoughtless act of those who fatten the big city merchants at the expense of our commonwealth.

If the trade of this community was kept at home our town would be more prosperous. The money we have earned would be in circulation, and would, in the course of business, come back to us perhaps several times in the course of a year; but that sent out of town does not come back. It is gone forever.

TOURIST REVENUE

In a summary compiled by California Mission Trails Association and just released, it was ascertained that the number of tourists visiting California this year exceeded the million mark attained in 1935. With two more months remaining, it is expected that the calendar year 1936 will show an increase of at least 100,000 visitors above the total for 1935, and that these tourists left within the boundaries of our state a golden stream of $225,000,000 of new money.

FBI HEAD PRAISES CARMEL POLICE

The Carmel Police Department this week received a letter from J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, lauding local police officers and Police Chief Clyde Klaumann who on November 9 caught a robbery suspect just 12 minutes after a holdup at the Carmel Savings and Loan Association was reported by John Rennels.

Later, James D. Moyer, 23, admitted the robbery and is in federal custody in San Francisco. He was a student of Russian at the Army Language School in Monterey.

COUNCIL TO EXAMINE SPORTS FUTURE AT SUNSET CENTER

Carmel's City Council face the prospect of a long and highly emotional meeting Nov. 30 when the future of Sunset Center's gym and north field will be discussed.

Indications are that the meeting will be well attended and the council will move its meeting site to the Sunset Center auditorium in place of the smaller chambers at City Hall. At least two groups are drumming up members to attend the meeting.

The primary issues attract a variety of groups and revolve around continued use of the gym and north field of sports activities. The police, cultural commission, Old Carmel and Carmel Youth center all have a stake in the outcome.

NEW CV GROUNDWATER STUDY MAY SLASH GROWTH PERMITTED UNDER MASTER PLAN

Growth limits in Carmel Valley will have to be downscaled unless a public sewage system is installed, according to a just-completed $30,000 groundwater quality study.

And the development capacity of the Carmel Valley Village area with septic systems already has been reached, says the report prepared by Montgomery Engineers for Monterey County and the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District.

The study sets a limit of 8,550 housing units which can be built with septic systems, based on the ability of the underground water table and soils to absorb.

High students was the feeling of friendship and support within the group. Being put under such pressure during the Super Quiz in a gym full of strangers created a need to look to each other for support.

Mark Russak summed it up: "It could be described as academics as a sport. We were all rooting for each other just like a baseball team."

After all was said and done Carmel High proved to be a strong competitor in the 1986 Academic Decathalon.

Carmel attorney to call on highest court in the nation

By MAC McDONALD

IT'S NOT exactly Mr. Smith Goes to Washington, but Carmel attorney James Heisinger is a man on a mission headed for our nation's capital — to the U.S. Supreme Court to be specific.

Heisinger, 34, who was born in Carmel and raised in Carmel area schools, will be arguing a case for Granite Rock Co. before the Supreme Court Dec. 2 concerning mining activity on federal land in the Pico Blanco area of the Los Padres National Forest.

The case has taken a rocky, see-saw course in the last three years, ever since Granite Rock filed a lawsuit in 1983 saying that they didn't need a coastal development permit from the California Coastal Commission to conduct federally-approved mining activities on land operated by the U.S. Forest Service.

According to Heisinger, Granite Rock lost its case in federal district court, but appealed to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals; a three-judge panel reversed the lower court's decision, siding with Granite Rock, but the Coastal Commission appealed to the highest court in the land.

That's when the Supreme Court asked for full briefing on the case and oral arguments, which is where Heisinger steps in, along with co-counsels Barbara Banke and Janet Econome of San Francisco.

And this is also where Heisinger gets vague, since he doesn't want to reveal too much of his team's "game plan," even to the point of who is going to conduct the oral arguments (each side is given one-half hour to argue their case).

But Heisinger can talk about how he feels about going to the Supreme Court, which must be akin to a football player going to the Super Bowl.

"I think it's a...pinnacle of any lawyer's professional career to take a case to the Supreme Court," said Heisinger, who has been a lawyer — with his own practice — for only six years. "It's something you never know when it's going to happen. It's a coup (for me). I don't know many from this area that have been there."

But if flying to Washington D.C. for a mere one-half hour of arguments seems a bit much, Heisinger feels the case itself may — if not set any precedents itself — affect land use planning issues up and down the coast, especially where federal lands are concerned.

"It's a case that deals with the California Coastal Act and the Federal Coastal Zone Management Act — two land use planning statutes that are very important in California — and the Coastal Zone Management Act, which applies to the entire coastline.

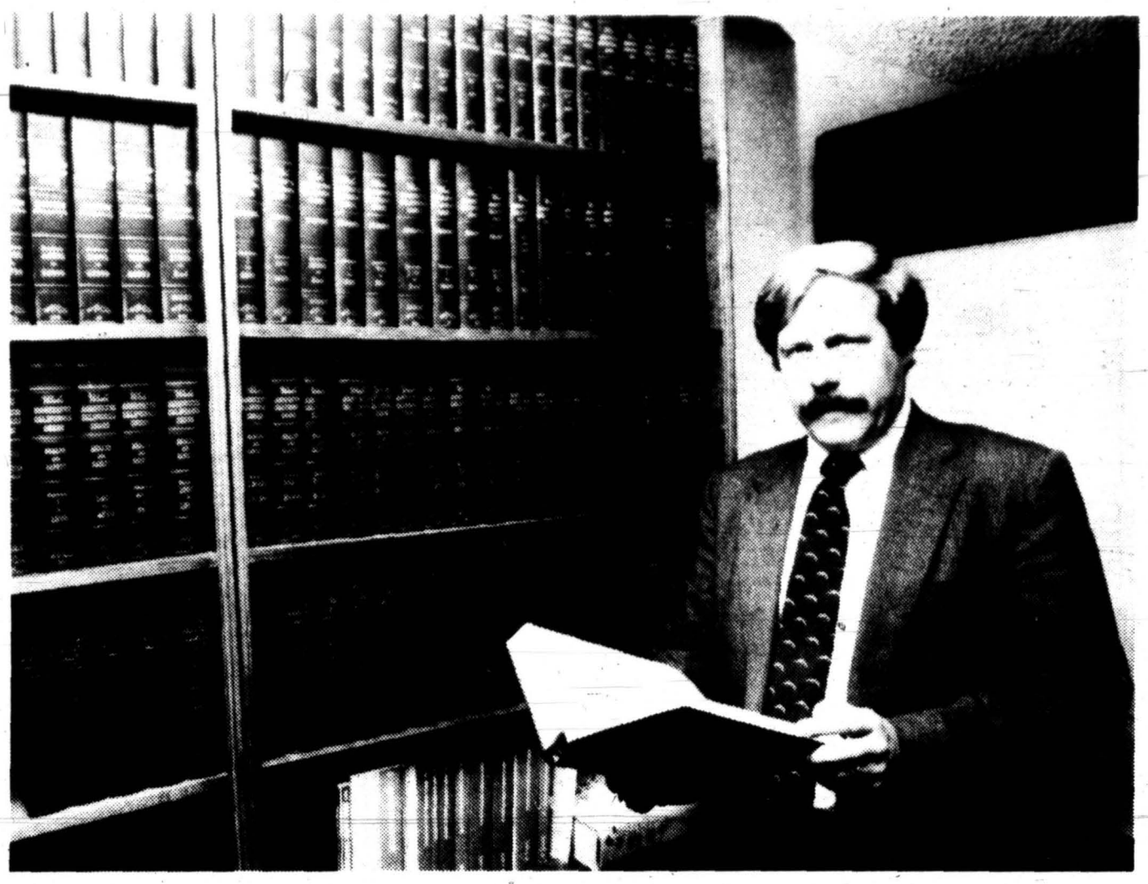
"The case should more clearly define the role the state plays in regulating activities on federal lands," he said.

Heisinger said that the Supreme Court, in the "broadest categories," could do several things: uphold the circuit court's decision and reject the Coastal Commission appeal; decide the circuit court is correct, but write their own opinion; decide the circuit court was wrong and issue their own opinion. Since "full-blown briefings and arguments" have already been written and read by the court (the Supreme Court asked to hear the case), a decision could come soon after the Dec. 2 court date, he said.

Heisinger is prepared for his visit to the high court. On his office wall hangs a framed certificate that says he is "duly admitted and qualified as an attorney and counselor of the Supreme Court," and he's going to be armed with a 1,000-page book that details all the ins and outs of taking a case to the Supreme Court, "even where the bathrooms are," he said laughing.

But Heisinger, who specializes in land use issues as well as teaches environmental law at Monterey College of Law, doesn't expect this to be a once-in-a-lifetime trip to the Big Court. With so many land use issues being contested here on the Monterey Peninsula and especially along the Big Sur coast, Heisinger may well want to keep that 1,000-page book close at hand.

"The odds are in favor of it if I continue to work on issues like the Big Sur Land Use Plan," he said. "Issues such as 'how far can the federal government regulate the use of private property before it's considered a taking without just compensation?' will have to be answered. Those cases are likely to originate in California where the government takes such an active role in land use planning. California is on the cutting edge."



CARMEL ATTORNEY James Heisinger is headed to Washington D.C. where he will argue a case Dec. 2 in front of the U.S. Supreme Court for Granite Rock Co. concerning mining activities in the Los Padres National Forest against an appeal by the California Coastal Commission. (Mac McDonald photo.)

He feels that several local "burning issues" will come to the forefront in the next year or two, including water allocation, viewshed-development credit issues in Big Sur, and zoning-land use issues in the city of Carmel.

"There's a hotbed of issues around here," he said. "The resolution of those issues on the local level is going to have an impact outside our area — setting precedents or ways to resolve those issues."

But in the meantime he's got a little item to take care of with justices Rehnquist, O'Connor, White, et al in Washington D.C.

DeBACHery

AND JUST what is a DeBACHery? It is a pun meaning down or away from the usual high-toned Bach activities. Frivolous, instead of serious, but after all, this was a kick-off for the Carmel Bach Festival's Golden Jubilee Year.

Through Bach-By-The-Bay a symbiotic relationship was developed with the Monterey Bay Aquarium. Thus, the magic of dancing in the fish tanks, so to speak, was planned for this slightly sinful evening of late supper and dancing.

Never have fish ogled such glamour and glitter as they did last Saturday night. As they eyed each other, hundreds of fish and dancers swayed to the music of the Cypress Strings group, blew bubbles, milled about and in general looked elegant and happy to be at this first big blowout in the 15-year history of the Carmel Bach Festival.

There was water, water everywhere but only champagne and wine to drink. Tanks-of-thanks go to the The Monterey Vineyard and the Monterey Sheraton Hotel — the official sponsors of the event.

Two mermaids (real, of course) introduced the English custom of the tombola by selling chances for prizes (in bottles in this case) with good odds for winning something — from a magnum of Cabernet to a bottle of capers.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Chatham won the silent auction bid to sip champagne with the mayor of Carmel, The Honorable Clint Eastwood in the home of Maestro and Mrs. Sandor Salgo. Mr. and Mrs. James Harrison, of San Luis Obispo, will have a Bach recital in their home as well as a dinner in the home of the board president.

Centerpieces were gold grapes (real fruit) casually placed on a mirror around a snifter with a goldfish (real and looking bewildered). The candlelit tables made the cavernous corridors conducive to intimate dining. Three hundred "deBacherers" were seated for midnight supper (called 'breakfast-dinner') at 9:30.

Among the Bach fans were Barbara Bode, Rev. and Mrs. Charles Anker, Mr. and Mrs. Jess Knubis, Mr. and Mrs. David Higgins, and Robert Skiles.

THOMAS HUNTINGTON ART RECEPTION

Friends, fellow artists and museum-goers flocked to the Alvarado Lobby of the Monterey Conference Center for the reception honoring Carmel artist Thomas Huntington. The display of his dramatic abstract landscapes caught the eye immediately.

Tom said, "I feel a new freedom and like to work on large canvases. Once my imagination fires and I begin a painting, the rest seems to flow easily." Considerable personal growth is evident in Mr. Huntington's work since his show at Landell Galleries. There is joy in his bold colors — turqs, blues, reds — and his strong use of form.

Grant and Christopher Huntington, brothers of the artist attended, along with Donna (Tom's wife) Karen (Grant's wife) and Tom's mother Mrs. Henry E. Huntington II. Also seen were Monterey Mayor and Mrs. Dan Albert, Mary Green, and gallery owner Chris Grimes of Carmel Valley.

The art exhibit was presented by the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art and sponsored by the Monterey Conference Center, Colton Hall Museum and the Cultural Arts Commission. Greeting guests from the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art were membership chairperson Helen Berger and her husband Sanford, of Carmel.

RLS RETURNS TO SCOTLAND VIA MONTEREY

Elizabeth Stuart of Edinburgh, Scotland and South Pasadena, went on a tour of Larkin House and came away with a great interest in Robert Louis Stevenson. We all known that RLS came from Scotland and is famous beyond words locally. However, in Scotland, this native son has been neglected. That is until now.

Stuart has become Scotland's foremost authority on Stevenson and has collected money from all over the world to erect a statue of the famous author on a site offered by the City of Edinburgh. Thirdly, she has started a living memorial with a Stevenson Endowment Fund to study childhood disease because she learned that he was ill as a child.

STAR TREK RETURNS

Star Trek IV: The Voyage Home was given a private screening at Cinema 70 Sunday night, the courtesy of the Monterey Bay Aquarium (where portions were filmed) and Parmount Pictures (who produced it).

Julie Packard, executive director of the aquarium said, "I found a similarity between the Star Trek movie and what we do at the aquarium. They have to meet deadlines like we do. However, I think they spent more per minute than we did building the aquarium."

Executive director Ralph Winter spoke of the "graciousness of the aquarium staff to the movie crew." Harve Bennett, producer/writer said, "I have worked on three Star Trek movies and this is the best of the lot." Leonard Nimoy, actor/director received thunderous applause when introduced and then the lights dimmed for the latest Star Trek movie. The audience of around 750 loved every minute of the film.

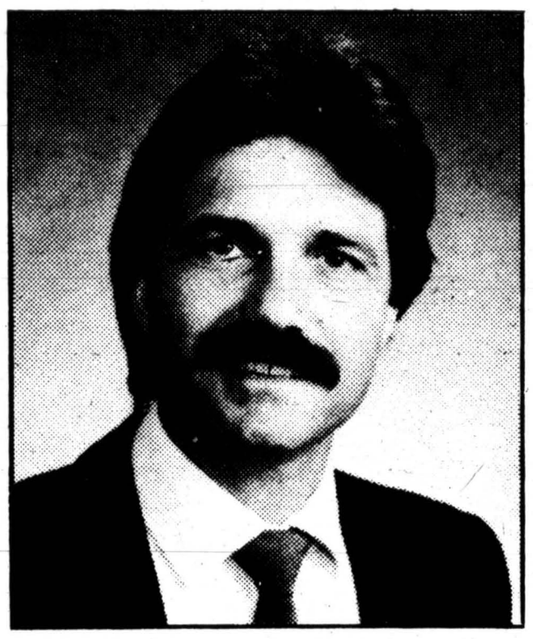
AUCTION GALLERIES UNLIMITED



CRAIG LEE HEMPHILL

You now have a choice. A new auction gallery has opened up on the Monterey Peninsula! Auction Galleries Unlimited, at 571 Lighthouse Ave., in Monterey is accepting consignments starting December 1.

Call for an appointment.

We at Auction Galleries Unlimited want to change the means by which you sell your precious possessions. We are a bonded and licensed auction company with a combined experience of over 40 years in the auction business.

MR. CRAIG LEE HEMPHILL was first introduced to the Peninsula as auctioneer and manager of the Auction Studio in 1972. Learning from the ground up, Craig gained valuable knowledge and experience in all phases of the auction business. His extensive background in economics and marketing enabled him to expand the scope of a small family auction business. Specifically, Craig expanded the research library; tripled the preferred customer mailing list; developed an inhouse advertising agency covering the media, developed new display techniques for better marketing of your antiques and collectables.

TOM JOHNSON, Manager of Auction Galleries Unlimited, offers 12 years of experience in the auction industry. Promotions from Warehouseman to Manager of the Friday Sale and then to Manager of the entire Saturday Sale demanded not only familiarity with antiques and art, but also experience in research, display, cataloguing of the sale, and customer relations. Tom's interest in and knowledge of art, particularly in limited edition prints, assures you an open and honest appraisal for your special item.

GEORGE STONE comes to Auction Galleries Unlimited with over 30 years in the auction business, as a Truck Service Moving specialist. George who will take special interest in the transportation of your valuables. He and his assistant will personally and professionally wrap and pack everything that you want to go to auction.

Auction Galleries Unlimited is a professional auction corporation dedicated to giving advice and assistance to individuals, executors, and trustees in the disposition of single items, collections, and estates.

Our services include the liquidation of estates — from the furnishings to the real estate. The same service applies to businesses, whether large or small. We also have on-site sales. Whether your needs are a "Tent Sale" complete with catering, or a "Price Tag Sale", Auction Galleries Unlimited has the complete auction plan for you.

Our newly remodeled gallery offers an elegant setting in which to display and auction your valuables. Auctions are held once a month and run 2 days in length.

HOW IT WORKS:
If you are selling, our sliding scale consignment rates keep interest high for both buyer and seller. The higher the hammer price, the lower the commission percentage! On a per item basis, the percentages are 25% for $100 and under; 20% for $101 to $500; 15% for $501 to $1500, and 10% for $1501 and above.

As a seller, your benefits include extensive advertising, insurance, truck service, storage, prompt payment, and more money returned to you. As an added service, Craig Hemphill, your auctioneer, will confer with you in the privacy of YOUR OWN HOME OR BUSINESS and give you a FREE written estimate of your valuables. Consignments are by appt. only. In this manner we can give you our individual attention. We at Auction Galleries Unlimited are ready and willing to be of service to you. Call today for further information.

THIS WAGON CHALLENGES EVERY REASON FOR NOT OWNING A WAGON.

Every year, the Sports Car Club of America holds a series of races with a class dedicated to performance sedans.

But this year, Volvo gave the race a larger dimension: the 740 Turbo Wagon. The first wagon to ever compete in this SCCA series.

The results? In the first five races, the 740 recorded the fastest qualifying times twice. And led one endurance race for five out of six hours.

More important, though, is that the 740 finished every race it started. A statement some of the performance sedans can't lay claim to.

And one that may make the 740 Turbo Wagon something unique among performance cars. The get-up-and-go that gets you where you're going.

BUSINESS BEAT

By Nancy Hills

Happy Thanks!

AS THIS paper comes out, most people will be running around preparing to leave to see someone who is the lucky nominee for the "I'll cook" Thanksgiving award.

Or you could be the winner in the friends and family lottery of who gets the fun of coordinating a great chow-down.

Lots of food, lots of fun — depending, of course, on the state of your relations with your relations.

Seriously, I do hope this Thanksgiving you can look around and find plenty of reasons to give thanks. If you can't find any — look again. Just try a different set of eyes.

In the meantime, business keeps rolling on.

• Real estate broker Bob Covert of Bob Covert Real Estate has moved his offices from Monterey to Carmel on the corner of Lincoln and Seventh. Covert took over one of the spots vacated by Benetti Realty, but the space was probably better known as Donna Dougherty Real Estate.

• Looks like Dilli Deli on the corner of Ocean and Monte Verde is in escrow. There's a change of liquor license in the window to a Herbert Fischbach. Rumor has it he's from San Francisco.

• The benches with all the names of people who sat there are gone from the Village Corner restaurant on the corner of Sixth and Dolores. Manager Paullette Hoover said the new seats were bought by owner Bob Carlisle when he was in Paris.

The old benches, which have been around for years, were not that comfortable, Hoover said. So out they went.

• Artist Jack Wall is now offering his bird — in particular quail — paintings on cards. Actually, they're photographs of the paintings. The cards can be ordered through mail only at this time, Wall said, and there are plenty of pictures of his friend and model Quincy the Quail. Quincy is a living, breathing quail and is depicted in more natural settings, of course, than standing on an artist's table at Woodstone Studio.

GONE, BUT WHERE?

Blackburn & Blackburn, the stamp and coin shop on Junipero Avenue closed the beginning of November. Unfortunately, the phone numbers have been disconnected with no forwarding, so I have no idea what owner Charles Blackburn has in mind. The "no forwarding number" may be a phone company error, so try dialing them yourself if you are interested in getting in touch with the business. There might be a forwarding on it by then.

WILLOWS IN CARMEL

Don and Joan Miller of the Willow Tea Room Restaurant and Willow Tea Room Studio are in the process of opening, in conjunction with Joyce Jenkins, an extension of the studio in Carmel. The shop, which doesn't have a name yet, is located Jenkins now former gallery in the Su Vecino Court on Dolores between Sixth and Fifth avenues. Don Miller said it will emphasize art noveau from the turn-of-the-century.

The Willow Tea Room restaurant and cocktail lounge is doing fine, Miller added, and had the distinction of winning an honorable mention in Restaurant and Hotel Design magazine contest for design of a full-service restaurant.

The magazine is a national publication, Miller said. The restaurant replicates the 1900s with genuine antiques, artworks and reproductions.

NOT GONE YET

I often hear complaints about the lack of service stations in town — and that's an indication tourists shops are taking over.

Well, there are a few left, and the Mobil station on the corner of San Carlos and Sixth has gotten to be one of those Carmel traditions.

Quite frankly, the only way to keep the stations here is to patronize them. If you don't buy your gas locally, you certainly can't say anything when they disappear.

Greg Bean Sr., the new owner of the Mobil, hopes Carmelites will find his station the local pit stop for a fill-up, car repair and towing. Bean recently moved from the Chevron station on the corner of Junipero and Fourth avenues and has set up shop at Mobil in town.

According to Bean, he couldn't afford the approximately $500,000 it cost to buy the land and station on Junipero — which is not an unusual story around this town.

He'll be pumping gas with an emphasis on fast service, Bean said, and will offer everything he offered at the Junipero station. The station will now be open at night until 9, except Sunday, when the station will close at 5 p.m.

A mechanic is also in attendance from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and parts for both American and foreign cars will be available.

For 24-hour towing — to any destination, not just the service station — Bean has hooked up with Mike Shapiro of Celebrity Towing. Shapiro has the added attraction of offering "car transportation," a service often requested by classic and antique car owners.

"Car transportation" refers to a truck that carries the car on its bed rather than towing it on the front or rear wheels. They also offer a regular tow truck, for us more modest folk who just want to get it fixed.

Clean and efficient is Shapiro's motto, he said. He certainly was tidy when I saw him.

If your car isn't running well, you might want to rent Bean's limousine service. Of course, the limo is also available for those special occasions such as weddings, graduations, proms and just t make an impression.

In fact, if you're over 21 and getting married, the limo comes with a free bottle of champagne. Good thing someone else is driving.

The former owner of Mobil, George Giem, has taken over the Chevron on Junipero and will continue to operate the Triple A service from there. Giem is the son of Harry Giem, who owned the Mobil station for years — 30 at least.

GOING BANANAS

Yes, it's open. Banana Republic in Carmel Plaza is now dispensing the cure for wanderlust at its newest store. However, there's no jeep crashing through the window as in other shops, or lions and tigers and bears (oh my). In keeping with Carmel's sensibilities, the store interior is done up as a hunting lodge. But it's definitely a Banana Republic store. That's not Muzak you hear in there. Masai and the Seven Spears never sounded so good.

The clothing is just what Banana Republic fans are looking for, and featuring such goodies as Swiss Army shirts, cotton fleece "flight suits," safari jackets, Foreign Legion shoes, sweaters and workshirt dresses. Accessories and travel gear, too.

The stores were started by two NEWSPAPER FOLK — I love it — from the San Francisco Chronicle, Mel and Patricia Ziegler. Fortunately, she could also sew. Now they're successful retailers and we all wonder if success has spoiled the purity of their journalistic souls. Actually, they started out with rather, shall we say, not-too-promising beginnings in the world of retail.

GABRIELLA KNUBIS was recently named the director of public relations at the Highlands Inn. She held a similar post at the Monterey Sheraton Hotel.

According to the information from the San Francisco headquarters, eight years ago when they opened (with their last $1,500 — where did a newshound and artist get all that money?) a shop in Mill Valley to sell the gear they like to wear.

Interesting things happened along the way to the Land of Fame and Fortune. Things like purchasing a bunch of Spanish paratrooper shirts — which turned out to have 29-inch sleeves. What the heck, tell them "real men" roll up their sleeves and blame it on Franco — that's a journalist for you, when stuck, talk fast and keep moving. Just fill that space and sell, sell, sell. And for those who don't go for the real men stuff — they turned the material into skirts.

Tomfoolery aside, everything worked out and the company grew and grew. When we baby boomers decide what's hot and what's not and buy en masse, it's always a success story. And we do like to look like we've been everywhere and seen everything. Real suburban guerrillas.

The company was sold to The Gap, another product of our age, in 1983, but the Zieglers stay in charge and the store's famous catalogue is still favorite reading material, sprinkled with pithy quotes from the most hard-bitten, angst-ridden writers this famous press corps has ever honed.

Blood pressure checked free

The Carmel-by-the-Sea Chapter of the American Red Cross has established regular blood pressure screenings from 2 to 4 p.m. on Wednesdays at the Red Cross Chapter House, Dolores Street and Eighth Avenue, Carmel.

The Visiting Nurses Association will also check blood pressure free of charge from 2 to 4 p.m. the first and third Wednesdays of each month at a Carmel location. For details, call 373-8943.

Toastmasters offer speech workshop

The Defense Language Institute Toastmaster Club will conduct an eight-week workshop titled "Speechcraft."

The program meets at 7 p.m. Tuesdays at the Oldemeyer Center, 986 Hilby Ave., Seaside.

Speechcraft participants will learn impromptu speaking, various styles of speaking and how to listen to and evaluate the communication of others.

For information about participation, call 394-4445.

MONTEREY PENINSULA COMMUNITY THANKSGIVING DINNER

The Monterey Peninsula Community Thanksgiving Dinner Committee will hold its 18th annual Thanksgiving dinner from 1 to 5 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 27 in the Monterey Room at the Monterey County Fairgrounds.

The event will be a community celebration closely resembling the first Thanksgiving; bring your favorite food to share and your own place setting. Those who want to donate food, service, labor, etc. are welcomed. For more information call Monterey County Fairgrounds or Sylvia Waldrup at 394-4445.

PACIFIC GROVE LIONS CLUB MEETING

The Pacific Grove Lions Club will serve a calamari, pasta and salad (all you can eat) from 1 to 7 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 29 at the Senior Citizen's Clubhouse, corner of Jewell Avenue and 19th Street in Pacific Grove. Cost is $4. Proceeds will benefit sight and hearing projects for the club. For information call John George at 372-7366.

EMBROIDERERS ANNUAL CHRISTMAS LUNCHEON

The Embroiderers Guild of America, Inc., Monterey Peninsula Chapter will hold its annual Christmas luncheon at noon, Monday, Dec. 1 at the Community Room of The Crossroads shopping center, Rio Road and Highway 1. Participants are asked to bring two Christmas ornaments, one to exchange and another to donate to Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula. For information call 624-0890.

SALVATION ARMY KICKS OFF CHRISTMAS CAMPAIGN

The Salvation Army kicks off its Christmas Campaign starting with a Santa Claus Parade at 11 a.m. Friday, Nov. 28 at Del Monte Center. Ceremonies will then be held at fountain court at the center. Bell ringers — mostly volunteers and from various church and service organizations — will be stationed with familiar red kettles at 15 peninsula locations from Nov. 28 until Christmas. Last year Pacific Grove Rotary collected the most kettle donations. Congregation Beth Israel and Monterey Presbyterian Church were the top bell-ringing church groups.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

The Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce elected its 1987 slate of officers at its November board meeting.

David Armanasco of Carmel, president of Armanasco Public Relations, has been named president for 1987. His term will officially begin following his inauguration at the chamber's annual dinner, Jan. 10.

Vice presidents include Bert Cutino, co-ower of The Sardine Factory; Pamela Musgrave, principal of Musgrave & Friends, Marketing and Design; and Sherrie McCullough, account representative for Discover Card, a member of the Sears Financial Network. Chuck Della Sala, vice president of Pacific Street Real Estate, was named treasurer.

Armansco has served as a Chamber board director for the past three years, and as vice president since 1985. In his new position, Armansco looks forward to continuing the unity between chamber and community that has been the hallmark of current President John Lotz and Executive Vice Persident Joan Pease's efforts.

A Monterey Peninsula native, Armansco has been involved in the wine industry for several years and has served as director of the Monterey Peninsula Hotel and Restaurant Association. He is also a director of the Economic Development Corporation of Monterey County and a trustee of Santa Catalina School.

In other board appointments, Elaine Vieira, Vice

VIRGINIA STANTON (seated at left), is shown with new Guide Dogs for the Blind graduate Dawn Bevans and a Golden Retriever guide dog raised and trained by 4-Her Carrie Evans (rear).

STATE ARTS COUNCIL GRANTS $6 MILLION TO ARTS ORGANIZATION

The California Arts Council, through its Organizational Grants Program, has made grants of $6,125,000 to 477 arts organizations throughout the state.

In Monterey County, grants were made to four organizations for a total of $28,526 granted. These organizations are: The Carmel Bach Festival granted the amount of $1,000; Friends of Photography granted $5,296; the Monterey County Symphony granted $6,507 and the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art granted the amount of $15,723.

Robert H. Reid, Director of the California Arts Council, noted that "The growing number of awards reflects both the higher level of development of more arts organizations, and the increased amount of quality artistic activity taking place in California." The council's Organizational Grants Program is designed to develop and strengthen the artistic and administrative capabilities of small, medium and large organizations, and to make their programs available to more Californians.

All arts council grants are decided through a competitive application process. Ten separate panels of experts reviewed a total of 688 applications to this program, ranking each on the basis of established criteria. Funds were sufficient to make grants only to the highest ranks, with each grantee receiving a percentage of its grand request.

The California Arts Council was established to promote artistic awareness and participation in California. It is a state agency which provides grants and technical assistance to artists and to nonprofit arts organizations. 1986 marks the 10th anniversary of the California Arts Council.

GUIDE DOG SPONSORED BY VIRGINIA STANTON

Virginia Stanton of Carmel traveled to the campus of Guide Dogs for the Blind, Inc., in San Rafael recently to present a guide dog she had sponsored. The presentation was part of the Nov. 8 graduation ceremony at the guide dog center.

Guide Dog President Donald E. Rossi introduced Stanton to the large gathering of graduation guests. He described her long-standing support of the guide dog organization as the head of its Monterey Committee.

The Golden Retriever guide dog sponsored by Stanton was given the honorary sname of "Shan" for graduation day in memory of her daughter Shannah. The dog became the official partner of Dawn Bevans of Veneta, Ore., who had just completed the 28-day, in-residence training course at the guide dog center.

The dog's raiser, 4-H member Carrie Evans of Bella Vista, Ca., was also present at the ceremony. The raising of guide dog puppies is an officialy accredited 4-H project.

Guide Dogs for the Blind, Inc., is a non-profit organization which trains pure-bred dogs in guide work and teaches qualified blind people how to use those dogs. There is no charge for this service.

For more information about the guide dog program, write or phone: Guide Dogs for the Blind, Inc., P.O. Box 1200, San Rafael, CA. 94915, or call (415) 479-4000.

time. The group will focus around the dilemmas of being alone, having little money, remembering last year at this time, the anticipation that Christmas will change things, the blended family with "your children and mine" and who they will spend Christmas with, mixed cultures and religions in the same family and family traditions and childhood memories bubbling to the surface.

The group will be facilitated by Judy Masliyah, who has a master's degree in counseling psychology with over 12 years professional experience and who has recently moved to the Monterey Peninsula from Salt Lake City where she was a licensed marriage and family therapist in private practice.

The group will meet Tuesday evenings from 7 to 8:30 for six weeks beginning Dec. 2, at the YWCA, 404 Camino El Estero, Monterey. Call 649-0834 to pre-register. Fee for all six weeks is $25 for YWCA members, $35 for non-members.

STEVENSON SCHOOL STRING ORCHESTRA HONORED

The Stevenson School String Orchestra and String Quartet have been selected to perform at the annual California Music Educators Association Convention in Sacramento on April 2-4.

The announcment came from Dr. Edward Williams of Cal State Fullerton, an officer in the Music Educators Association.

The association invites outstanding groups from the college and high school level to perform for its members during the three-day convention. Stevenson's orchestra and string quartet were selected by tape audition. The string orchestra ensemble consists of 20 members from grades 9-12, and includes sophomore Leah Bayes and seniors Don and Bob Padgett, who were members of last year's All-State Honor Orchestra.

PLANNED PARENTHOOD OF MONTEREY COUNTY'S ANNUAL MEETING

The Outrigger on Cannery Row was the site of Planned Parenthood of Monterey County's Sixteenth Annual Meeting Nov. 6. The evening's program was highlighted by a presentation on the "Feminzation of Poverty," by Vera Marcus of the California State Commission on the Status of Women. Marcus' presentation was a combination of facts on the current economic status of women in the United States. She reported that things have gotten worse for women in our country in the past decades. "The connection between teen pregnancy and poverty is inescapable. We must tackle this problem head on."

Recipients of the Dorothy Taugher Award for outstanding service and commitment to family planning were Barbara Nelson and Ruth Pardoll.

Planned Parenthood's new board members and officers for 1987 were presented. Serving as officers will be Wilfred A. Dally, president; James Bower, vice-president; Carla Hudson, treasurer; Lynne White-Dixon, secretary. New board members will include Susan Johnson, Jerry Meltzer, Karen Keller, and Katherine Ernst.

YWCA APPOINTS NEW DIRECTOR

The YWCA of the Monterey Peninsula has announced the appointment of Fabia Massaro as Executive Director.

Massaro has recently been the interim executive director of the YWCA and was formerly the administrative assistant for the YWCA. Prior to that, she was employed by Metropolitan Insurance in a variety of positions.

The YWCA of the Monterey Peninsula was established in 1971 and has operated an Emergency Shelter for Battered Women and their Children since 1982. The Shelter serves approximately 200 individuals per year. The YWCA operates other programs to assist women and girls on the Monterey Peninsula.

qualify for the semi-finals will compete in a test of their behind-the-wheel driving skills on Saturday, Nov. 22 at the Auto Center in Seaside. The top five boys and girls will then go into the finals, to be heid at Laguna Seca Raceway, Sunday, Dec. 6.

The winning boy and girl will each receive a $1000 scholarship to the college of their choice and a $300 driving scholarship with the Jim Russell British School of Motor Racing. Other prizes will be awarded to all remaining finalists.

This event was first held on the peninsula in 1973, and is an excellent way of teaching our youth the principles of safe, sober automobile driving.

For further information and applications, students should contact Rich Hughett, 885 Abrego Street, Monterey, CA 93940, immediately.

BUDDY PROGRAM ELECTS OFFICERS

Nancy Cronk of Pacific Grove was elected president of the Board of Directors of The Buddy Program of the Monterey Peninsula at its September meeting. Cronk works as the membership manager of the Monterey Bay Aquarium. Other newly elected officers are: Susan Baily (Carmel) and Theresa Wright (Marina), co-vice presidents; George Terrell (Seaside), secretary; and Marilyn Blankenship (Pacific Grove) and Bob Vanderslice (Monterey), co-treasurers. Terms of office are one year.

The Buddy Program is a child companionship program which matches children from single parent families with adult volunteers on a one-to-one basis. It has been serving children on the Monterey Peninsula for 15 years and is a United Way agency.

LEADERSHIP MONTEREY PENINSULA SELECTS CLASS OF 1987

The 30 new participants of the LMP Class of 1987 met the Board of Directors at a reception on Sept. 24 hosted by Doubletree Inn.

The new class is comprised of a diverse group of men and women from throughout the community who have expressed a desire to help shape the future of the Monterey Peninsula.

Each student will participate in monthly day-long class sessions and will become involved with a group project focusing on a particular community issue. One project from last year's class resulted in a book, A Survival Manual for Working Parents on the Monterey Peninsula, which is available for $2 at the leadership office.

Leadership Monterey Peninsula is a non-profit, non-partisan program designed to ensure that the future leaders of the community have the skills and encouragement they will need to assume key roles in the civic and professional life of the area.

The program is funded partially through student tuition and primarily through private donations to the program. Local students chosen for the new fifth year class include:

From Carmel: William Golden, consultant, management; Jeanette Groves, executive officer, Environmental Managements Consultants; Lucinda Lloyd, administrative supervisor, Community Hospital; Cynthia Riebe, designer; Patricia Sandstrum, project director, Alliance on Aging; Thomas Smith, investment counselor, Patricia Qualls & Associates; Philip Snowdon, owner, Creative Insurance.

From Carmel Valley; Barry Kilzer, attorney/financial advisor; John Locke, financial planner, John E. Locke, Financial Services, Inc.; Gene Zellmer, president, L. Gene Zellmer Assoc. Inc.

NON-PROFIT EDUCATIONAL MAGAZINE SEEKS SUPPORT

The non-profit Monterey Bay Wellness Center has announced that they will discontinue publishing the bay wide, non-profit Community Spirit magazine unless 3,000 new subscribers can be found before Nov. 1. Subscription rates for the monthly Community Spirit magazine are set at $18 per year.

The Community Spirit magazine is a general interest magazine which deals with, among other things, the arts, politics, environmental issues, responsible investing, personal and community health and the human spirit. The magazine has been circulating 30,000 copies monthly in both Santa Cruz and Monterey Counties for close to six years.

CARMEL STUDENT TO ATTEND INTERLOCHEN

Interlochen Arts Academy, Interlochen, Mich., has announced the acceptance of Edward Louis McGowan, son of Joseph and Anne McGowan of Carmel for the fall term that began Sept. 16.

According to the Academy Admissions Department, the talented 11th-grader will pursue studies in flute.

Celebrating its 25th anniversary year, Interlochen Arts Academy is the nation's first private boarding high school to offer intensive training in music, dance, theater, creative writing, stage design and production, and all major visual arts. High school students aged 13 to 17 come from all over the world to attend the famous acacemy — sometimes called "Fame in the Woods" — located on 1,200 wooded acres in northwestern lower Michigan.

CARMEL WOMAN ENTERS MAINE COLLEGE

Laura K. Cohen, daughter of Jerome and Madeline Cohen of Carmel, is entering Bates College as a freshman.

A graduate of Robert Louis Stevenson High School in Pebble Beach, Cohen played field hockey, softball and volleyball. She was also a member of the yearbook staff.

A liberal arts college in Lewiston, Maine, Bates is the oldest coeducational institution of higher learning in New England and the second oldest in the nation. It has a current enrollment of approximately 1,500 undergraduates.

Cachagua area plan needs participation by area residents

THE MONTEREY County Board of Supervisors has appointed a Citizens Advisory Committee to help in developing an area plan for Cachagua, but citizen input is needed.

The next public meeting of the committee will be held at 7 p.m. Monday, Dec. 1 at the Cachagua Volunteer Fire Co. building at Prince's Camp.

Residents interested in participating are asked to sign a mailing list at the meeting or by writing directly to:

Cachagua Area Plan Mailing List
Monterey County Planning Department
PO Box 1208
Salinas, CA 93902.

Public participation is encouraged at these meetings to insure that property owners and residents have their concerns reflected in the Cachagua Area Plan that is to be developed, according to Joel Panzer, county planner.

For more information contact Panzer at 422-9018.

Are we having fun yet?

FIRST-GRADERS at Junipero Serra School at the Carmel Mission celebrated Thanksgiving Tuesday afternoon with a pantomime act re-enacting the first meeting between the pilgrims and Indians at Plymouth Plantation in Massachusetts. For some of the students in Mary Marchi's class, such as Diana Lal (left), and Nicole Wright, it was the first time they had performed in front of their parents. After the performance students and parents were treated to a Thanksgiving "feast" of cake and juice. (Holly McFarland photo.)

Make YOUR Smile a winner!

Bonding is not a new procedure. In this, the era of holistic health, physical fitness, and "be the best you can be" mentality, bonding has come of age.

Bonding is a relatively simple procedure. A composite resin or porcelain material is added directly to the roughened enamel surface of the tooth. Usually no anesthesia is required.

OBITUARIES

Burkitt A. Reynolds

Private funeral services took place, with the Paul Mortuary in charge of arrangements, for Burkitt A. Reynolds, a resident of Pebble Beach for 30 years and a retired Army lieutentant colonel, who died Nov. 8 at the Monterey Convalescent Hospital. He was 75.

Born June 20, 1911 in Lincoln, Neb., he was a graduate of the University of Nebraska, where he was a member of the Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity.

During his 30 years in the Army, Lt. Col. Reynolds was awarded the Bronze Star for service in World War II, during which he served in the European theater of war.

Survivors include his wife, Ruth; a daughter, Patt Stiffler of Houston and three grandsons.

Cremation was followed by inurnment in the National Cemetery in San Bruno.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the Monterey County SPCA or to the Salvation Army.

Alfred M. Fritschi

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea for Alfred M. Fritschi of Carmel, a retired Hollywood agent, who died Nov. 14 at Community Hospital. He was 79.

Born May 12, 1907 in San Francisco, he was a student at Stanford University and worked for the California Department of Fish and Game during the vacation months.

After attending college, he worked for Union Oil of California, ending up in sales promotion department in Fresno.

He became an artist representative in the motion picture business in Hollywood, and was associated with producers, directors and actors. He was active in television until his retirement in 1963, when he moved to Marin County and then to Carmel in 1973. His memberships included the Monterey Peninsula Country Club.

Survivors include his wife, Frances; two stepdaughters, Nancy Stone of Palo Alto and Sharron Stone of Austin, Texas; and a brother, David Fritschi of Reno.

At his request, no services were planned. Ashes were scheduled to be scattered at sea. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Julie E. Gregory

Burial was scheduled to take place on the Parker Ranch in Kamulela, Hawaii for Julie E. Gregory, an artist and former Carmel resident, who died Nov. 2 in Newport Beach. She was 68.

Born July 2, 1918 in Illinois, she had lived in Newport Beach, Laguna Beach, and was a Carmel resident for seven years. Her permanent home was in Hawaii since 1955. She was an artist in the Laguna Beach area and traveled back and fourth from Hawaii for her work.

Survivors include her husband, Buck; sons, Phillip A. Gregory of Honolulu, Hawaii and Jay Caskey of Kailua, Kona, Hawaii; sisters, Doris Brocado of Sunland and Virginia Gentile of Costa Mesa; four grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

She was preceded in death by her son, Charles E., who died in 1985 and is also buried in the Parker Ranch in Hawaii.

Pierce Brothers Mortuary in Costa Mesa was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the Life Foundation, 320 Ward Ave., Suite 104, Honolulu, Hawaii 96814.

Linda J. McDermet

No services were held for Linda J. McDermet, who died Oct. 23 at the University of Iowa Hospital in Iowa City. She was 37.

Born in Carmel, June 8, 1949, she was a lifelong resident of the peninsula. A leukemia patient, Mrs. McDermet was at the Iowa City hospital for a bone marrow transplant operation, and died following surgery.

Mrs. McDermet, whose maiden name was Gurney, was a 1967 graduate of Monterey High School.

Until three months ago, she was secretary to the provost at the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey.

Survivors include her husband, Michael; her parents, Louis and Evelyn Gurney of Seaside; a brother, Steven Gurney of Tucson, Ariz.; and her grandmother, Madge Farnum of Seaside.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the American Leukemia Society.

Margaret Swanson

Services and burial took place at Oakmont Memorial Park in Lafayette Oct. 21 for Margaret Swanson, a resident of Cachagua in Carmel Valley who died at Beverly Manor Oct. 17. She was 86.

Born in Minneapolis, Minn., Mar. 27, 1900, Mrs. Swanson resided with her son, Jack, an artist and rancher. She was a ballet dancer on the stage as a young woman and was invited to tour the U.S. with the Russian Ballet.

Survivors include two sons, Jack Swanson of North Woods, and Reed of Smithers, B.C., Canada; a daughter, Jeanne Ruehle of Danville, and nine grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

The family suggests contributions to the charity of the donor's choice. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of all local arrangements.

Frederick McNulty

Cremation took place for Frederick Charles McNulty, an architect and 35-year resident of Carmel, who died Nov. 12 at his home. He was 67.

Born Oct. 6, 1919 in Soochow, Kiangsu, China, of Episcopal missionary parents, he attended the Shanghai American School and the Kent School in Connecticut. He earned his bachelor's degree from Princeton University in 1942, and was awarded the Alexander Guthrie McCosh prize for his thesis in philosophy.

After graduation, he joined the U.S. Army, serving with the 15th Army Air Corps in Italy from 1943 to 1945, and was awarded the Legion of Merit medal for the design of innovative ordinance equipment.

After the war, he returned to Princeton and earned his master's degree in architecture and urban planning in 1949. That same year, he came to the Monterey Peninsula and worked first for Robert Stanton, and then for Butner, Holm and Waterman in Salinas, before joining Wallace Holm Architects, Inc. At the time of his retirement in 1983, he was the vice president of the firm.

He designed several of the buildings at Monterey Peninsula College, including the library. He also wrote a master plan for the college and for Santa Catalina School, where he was the architect for several building additions.

He served as vestryman of All Saints' Episcopal Church and as both secretary and treasurer of the Monterey Bay Chapter of the American Institute of Architects. He also was a board member of the New Monterey Property Owners Association and of the Monterey County Citizens Planning Association. He served on the Carmel Planning Commission from 1982 through 1984.

Survivors include his wife, Sara Farny McNulty of Carmel; a daughter, Margaret McNulty Leung of Sunnyvale; three brothers, Henry of London, Bard of Glastonbury, Conn., and Kneeland of Albuquerque, N.M., and two granddaughters.

At his request, no services were planned. Ashes will be scattered at sea at a latter date.

The family requests memorial contributions to the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula, P.O. Box 223139, Carmel 93923.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

God's 'law of love' says it all

Invocation to meeting
Sons in Retirement, October, 1981

Almost 100 years ago, an eccentric Anglican deacon and mathmatics professor at Oxford wrote Alice in Wonderland under the pseudonym Lewis Carroll. This novel appeals to both young and old, and many of his characters have become part of the world's folklore.

The duchess says, "'Tis so; 'tis true, oh 'tis true; 'tis love that makes the world go round."

Having said this and argued that it is true, we can now argue that no four letter word in the English language is so abused, misused and misunderstood as LOVE.

Once, on a trip to New York, I saw a powerful but morbid play by Graham Green, The Living Room. In one scene, an elderly priest in a wheelchair berates his two old maid sisters over the suicide of their niece. "Do you think if she had come into a house where there was love she would not have hesitated, thought twice and talked to us?"

Oh Lord, help us to understand that your law of love says it all, and may we realize that love is so misunderstood in all walks of life because most of us are neither walking, jogging, nor running but standing on the sidelines of life trying to hitch a free ride. Amen.

Foster parents' orientation set

An introduction for people interested in becoming foster parents and an orientation for new foster parents will be offered 4 to 6 p.m. the second and fourth Tuesday of each month.

The programs are presented at the Department of Social Services' Conference Room at 1352 Natividad Road, Salinas. For more information, call Children's Services at 754-2212.

Gospel show in Seaside

A special concert featuring versatile recording star Ted Jordan and his band will take place at 6 p.m., Sunday, Nov. 30 at Seaside Assembly of God, 1184 Hilby Avenue, Seaside.

Jordan, formerly a musician with Fresno radio station KTEX, and now a full time gospel musician, is well known for his sparkling sense of humor and his cartoon drawings.

The concert is free. For further information call 899-4124.

Crafts sale set Nov. 29

A studio Christmas sale of crafts artists will take place from 10 a.m. to 4 .m. on Saturday, Nov. 29 at 123 17th St. in Pacific Grove (between Lighthouse and Ocean.)

Artists and crafters featured are: Elizabeth Harer, driftwood paintings and folk art; Myrtle Falkenberg, hand-crafted rocking "critters"; Helen Stephenson, shell paintings and magnets; Kathy Wynn, silver and gold original jewelry; Danita Wynn, pastel paintings and Mattie's ceramics.

For further information call Elizabeth Harer at 372-2228.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

"I feel the same way I did when I was 89." That was what the incomparable George Burns had to say when he turned 90 earlier this year. In a typical display of Burns optimism, he announced that he'd just signed a contract with the London Palladium to appear there on his 100th birthday.

Environmental groups buy 40-acre Big Sur grove

In a collaborative effort, The Big Sur Land Trust, Save the Redwoods League, and the Monterey Chapter of the Audubon Society, pooled assets and ideas to preserve a 40-acre virgin tract of redwoods in the south fork of Partington Creek in Big Sur.

The owner, Cynthia Hurley, sister of a longtime Big Sur resident Jeff Norman, initially sought the Land Trust's assistance in procuring a buyer for the property who would continue its protective stewardship. The Land Trust successfully responded to this challenge by obtaining a commitment of $130,000 from the Redwoods League and a pledge of $20,000 from Monterey Audubon Society.

The property, locally known as Swiss Camp, eventually will be transferred to the California State Park system with the approval of Cynthia Hurley, as an addition to Julia Pfeiffer Burns State Park. This state park is located near the southern boundary of the native range of the Coast Redwood (Sequoia Sempervirens) a range that extends 500 miles north to the Oregon border.

At the Audubon Society's request and with the approval of the parties to the transaction, a portion of the redwood grove will be dedicated to the memory of Dr. John Davis and Dr. Betty Davis, in recognition of the valuable contribution the Davises made to the conservation of the land and marine resources of Monterey County and Monterey Bay. A dedication ceremony will take place on the property in November.

In appreciation of this transaction, Monterey County Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman said: "Generations to come may or may not know that The Big Sur Land Trust assisted in this preservation effort. But I am convinced that those generations will be profoundly indebted to your organization for its foresight. There will be a sense of gratitude that the area remains unspoiled whenever our successors on earth experience the tranquility of the grove."

With this transaction The Big Sur Land Trust has effectively preserved 5,758 acres of the Big Sur coast and the Monterey Peninsula by working with landowners. The trust has completed 28 transactions that met the landowners' needs and desires, and that also provided conservation results of significant public benefit.

As a community non-profit organization, the trust depends on voluntary contributions for the continuance of its work.

Carmel Red Cross conducts classes in CPR techniques

In 1986 650,000 people in the United States will die from heart attacks ... fully three-quarters of those attacks will happen at home.

Cardiopulmonary resuscitation, commonly called CPR, saves approximately 250 lives every day in the United States.

With that in mind the Carmel-by-the-Sea chapter of the American Red Cross has launched a campaign to train as many people as possible in CPR techniques.

These classes will teach new standards in CPR techniques, as well as choking rescue techniques — the famed Heimlich maneuver — according to Phil Gray, chapter publicity chairman.

The classes, including demonstrations and lectures, require about four hours to complete. Trained Red Cross CPR instructors will conduct the courses.

Those completing the CPR course will be awarded with Red Cross certificates. Class size, however, is limited. For more information, or to register, call 624-6921.

'Humpback to the Future' exhibit

'Star Trek' props beam down to aquarium

By ANNE PAPINEAU

THE STUFF of which film fantasy is made — namely urethane whale skin, spaceships topped with thousands of "greeblies" (model airplane parts), plus other oddities — is now on display at the Monterey Bay Aquarium.

Fans of Star Trek, special effects and humpback whales will each find enlightenment in the exhibit which takes its cue from the newest Star Trek film, Star Trek IV: The Voyage Home.

The aquarium plays a key role in the fourth Star Trek movie. Filming took place in April at the Cannery Row fixture, with thousands of aquarium visitors catching a glimpse of William Shatner as Adm. James T. Kirk and Leonard Nimoy as Mr. Spock. Nimoy also directed and co-wrote Star Trek IV.

But viewers of the newly-released film will note that the aquarium does not portray itself, but rather it represents the fictional Sausalito Cetacean Institute on San Francisco Bay.

Clues to the movie magic that made possible this identity switch are provided in the new exhibit occupying part of an upper floor gallery at the Monterey Bay Aquarium.

More than $250,000 worth of movie artifacts have been loaned to the aquarium from Paramount and Lucasfilm's Industrial Light and Magic (ILM) in San Rafael. The props are a tribute to the creativity of the ILM crew, whose job called for building Klingon battleships, a detailed model of the Golden Gate Bridge and literally "reinventing the whale."

"There is incredible craftsmanship in these props," noted Don Hughes, curator of exhibits for the Monterey Bay Aquarium.

Hughes and his staff had a slim three weeks to assemble sundry movie memorabilia into an exhibit that conveys a story. Visitors to the aquarium will see the props teamed with storyboards and script pages used in the film. The completed movie sequences in which these elements play a part are screened on video monitors.

"I chose wall materials different from the polished surfaces we usually use in exhibits. This rough plywood was deliberately left plain to convey the feeling of a movie set," Hughes explained as aquarium staffers put finishing touches on the exhibit, subtitled "Humpback to the Future."

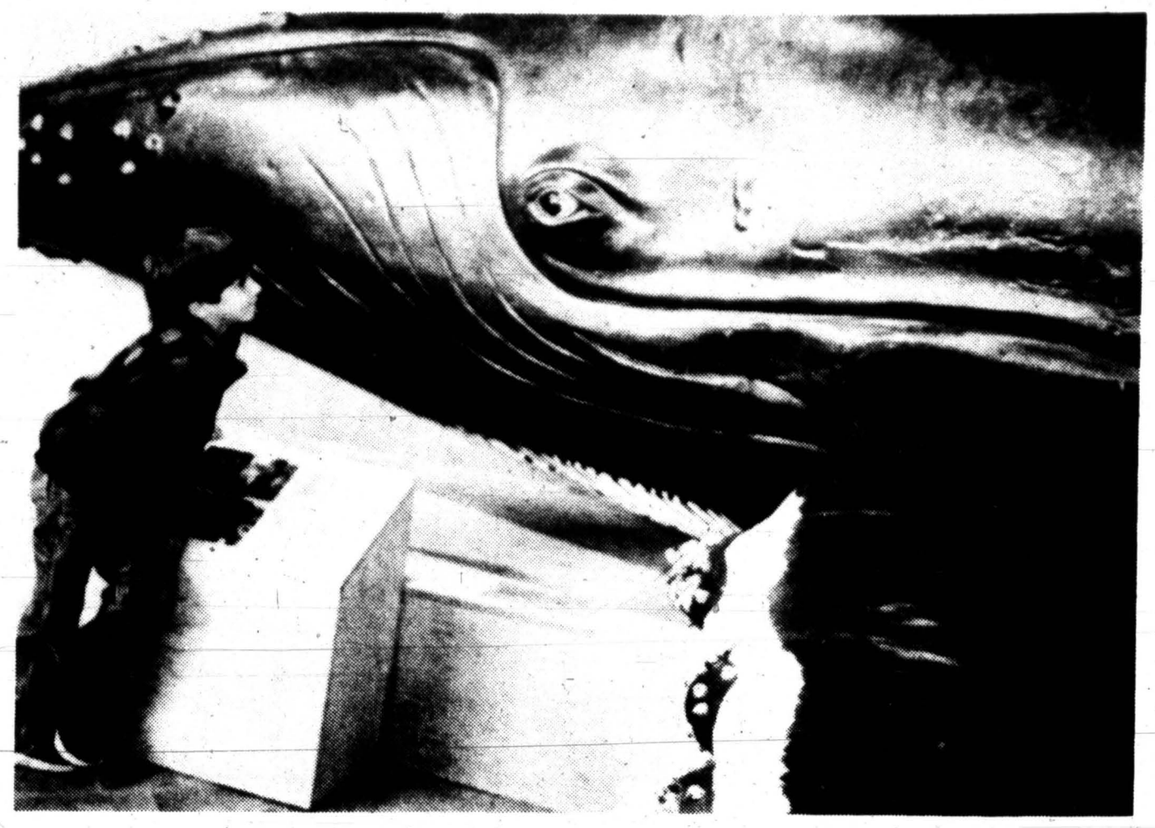
LIKE THE FILM, the exhibit contains a showstopper or two.

Industrial Light and Magic built a pair of models to represent the Klingon ship, "Bird of Prey." The aquarium has borrowed them, two evil-looking craft which on closer inspection prove to be topped with hundreds of parts gleaned from model airplane, ship and auto kits. As the exhibit explains, these toy parts are called "greeblies." The craft are further endowed with computer-controls.

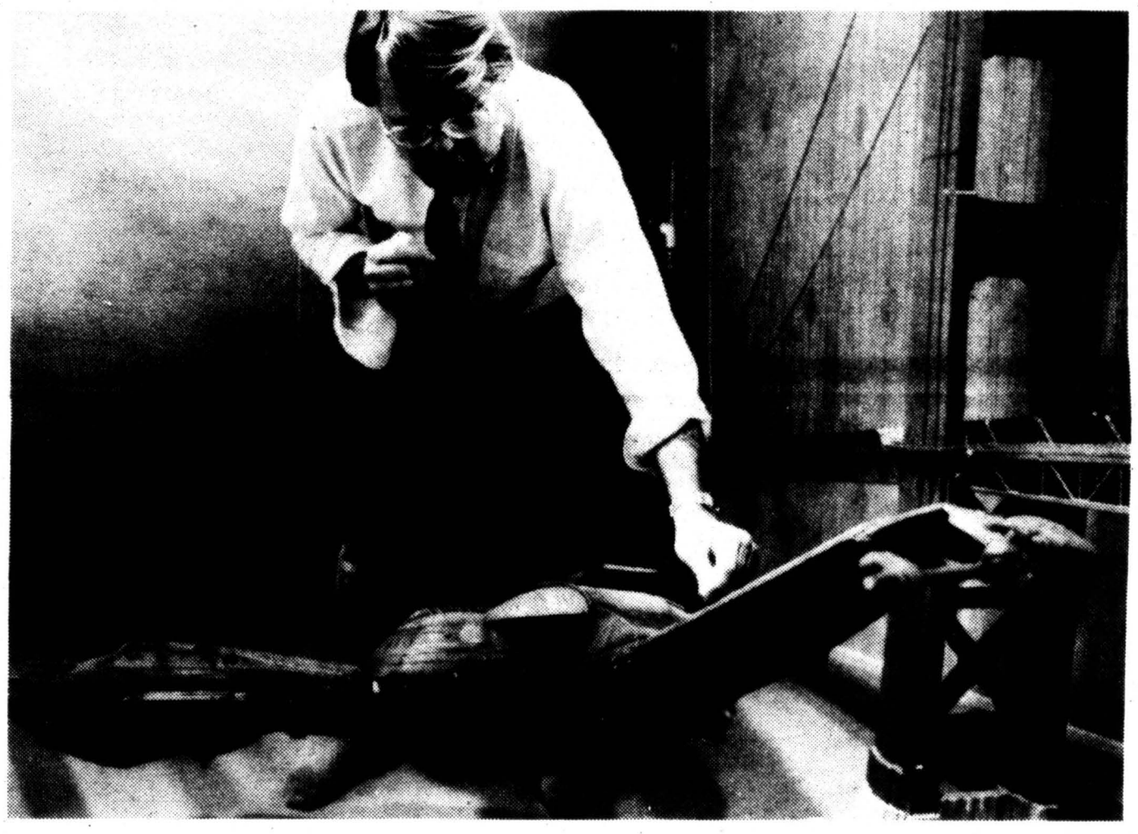
Although its screen time is brief, the 16-foot model of the Golden Gate Bridge reflects additional attention to detail. The bridge is constructed in "forced perspective," which makes it look ungainly to the naked eye. But a camera monitor mounted at the exhibit reveals that the model plays its role convincingly.

Cinematic cetaceans star in both the movie and the exhibit. An 18-foot-long model of a humpback whale occupies its own corner of the aquarium. It is with this being that Spock performs a Vulcan "mind-meld" in Star Trek IV. Its flippers are realistically barnacled and the model also boasts an expressive, articulated eye that can be manipulated by divers.



WAYLON OLSEN, 7, from Wasilla, Alaska, checks out the life-size humpback whale head model, a featured creature in the new film, Star Trek IV: The Voyage Home.

Props from the film can be viewed at the Monterey Bay Aquarium, where footage was shot last April. (Holly McFarland photo).



DON HUGHES, curator of exhibits for the Monterey Bay Aquarium, steadies a $100,000 motion-control model of the spaceship Bird of Prey. The ship is exhibited beside a 16-foot-model of the Golden Gate Bridge. Both properties were produced by Industrial Light and Magic for Star Trek IV: The Voyage Home. (Holly McFarland photo).

The ILM "creature shop" built several whales for the film, but first it had to devise "real fake whale skin." The skin had to look like the real thing, and not wrinkle when the mechanical whale went through its paces. The aquarium exhibit encourages visitors to touch a sample of the spongy, photogenic substance, which took more than 100 hours to develop. The whale skin is composed of urethane with an added plasticizer and tiny glass balls, or "microballoons."

Miniature whales paired with joysticks occupy another case at the exhibit. These whales also perform in Star Trek IV. Two joysticks guided the flippers and two the tail, so four operators simulated the movements of a real whale in a backlot tank.

Star Trek IV: The Voyage Home was filmed not only at the Monterey Bay Aquarium, but also at Paramount Studios in Hollywood, North Island Naval Base near San Diego, a desert location near Palmdale, an industrial plant in Santa Ana and various sites in San Francisco. Will Rogers State Park in Southern California doubled as the location for Golden Gate Park in San Francisco.

The story, as devised by Leonard Nimoy and producer Harve Bennett, begins in the 23rd century setting familiar to fans of Star Trek. But the future world is on the edge of destruction, and the only hope for its salvation lies in the past, specifically the San Francisco Bay Area of 1986.

Time travel figures in the new film, as it did in the Star Trek television series. Time travel was a key in one of the series' most popular episodes, "The City on the Edge of Forever," which guest-starred Joan Collins and took Kirk, Spock and Dr. McCoy on a trip to 1930s New York.

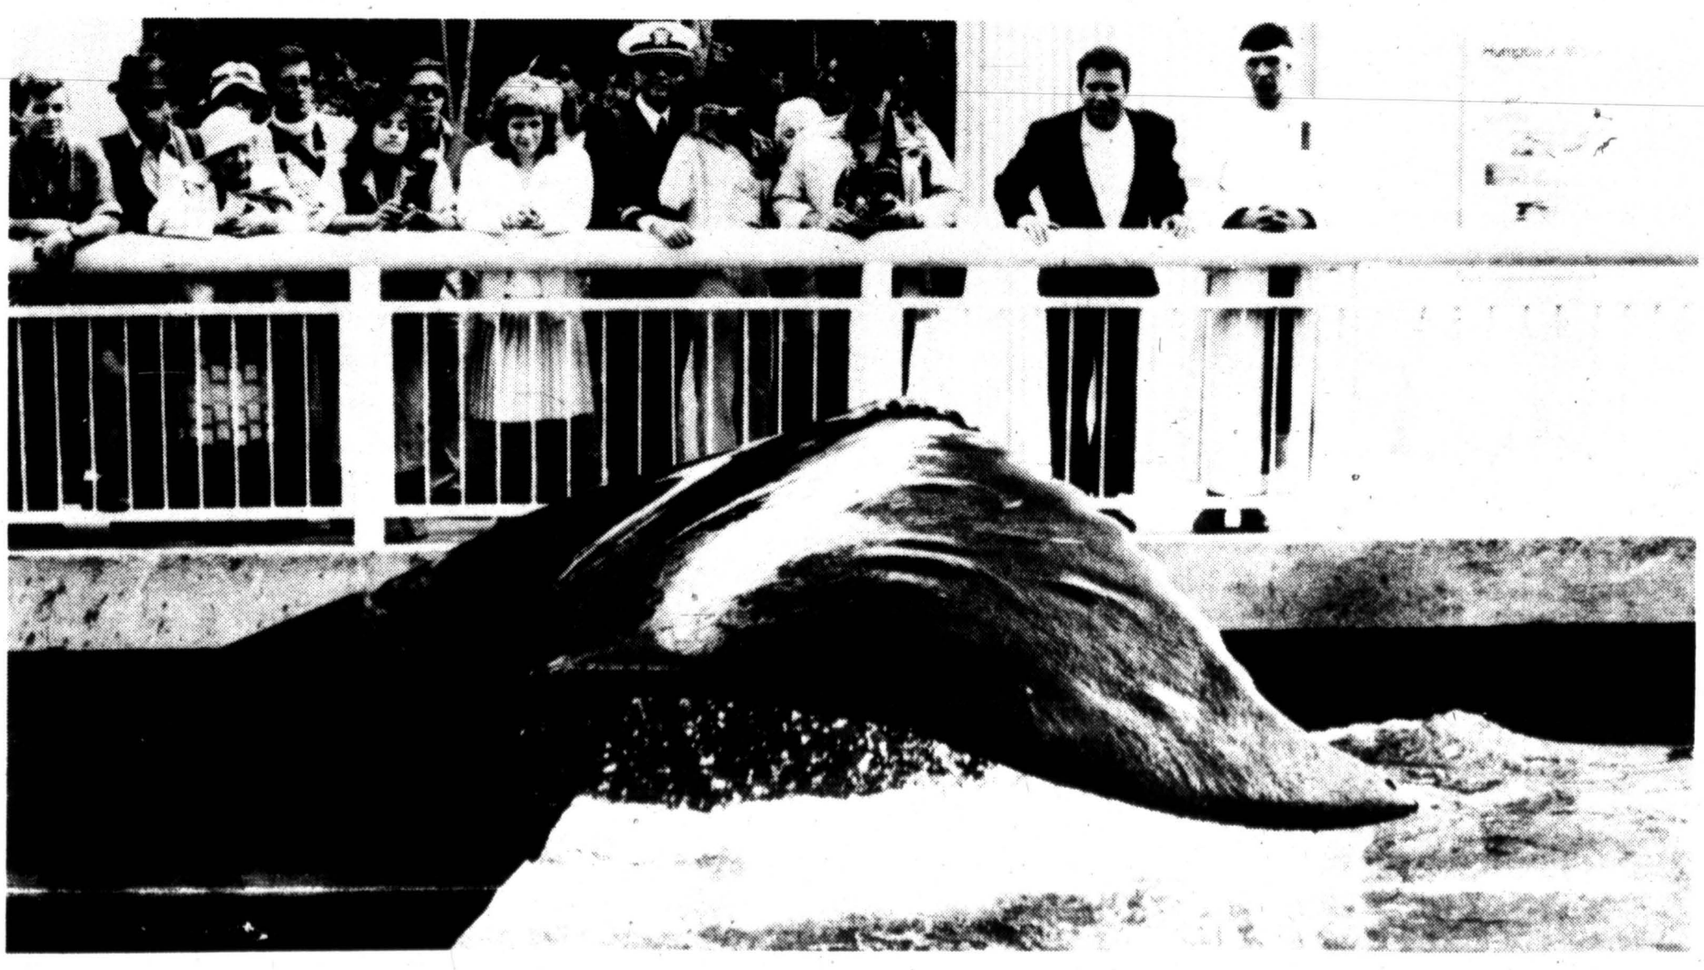
Don Hughes of the Monterey Bay Aquarium said that the aquarium "really evaluated working with a film crew at all."

According to Hank Armstrong and Diane Stuart of the public relations staff at the aquarium, Star Trek IV: The Voyage Home carries an underlying, positive environmental message, and a marine theme that melds well with the aquarium's own message.

"I think if another film was to be made here it would have to be awfully good," Hughes added. "I'd say if somebody wanted to remake The Three Stooges at the aquarium, I doubt they'd get the go-ahead."

The newest Star Trek feature reunites the original cast members, including DeForest Kelley, James Doohan, George Takei, Walter Koenig and Nichelle Nichols. Catherine Hicks stars as Dr. Gillian Taylor, a contemporary marine biologist who joins the crew of the late Starship Enterprise, which went down in flames at the end of the third movie.

The "Humpback to the Future" exhibit continues at the Monterey Bay Aquarium through March 1, 1987. The exhibit is free with the aquarium's general admission of $3 for children, $5 for students and seniors and $7 for adults. Hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.



THE MONTEREY BAY Aquarium on Cannery Row was transformed into the mythical Sausalito Cetacean Institute in present-day San Francisco in Star Trev IV: The Voyage Home. Catherine Hicks (as Dr. Gillian Taylor, in white dress), William Shatner and Leonard Nimoy (as Kirk and Spock, far right), watched with interest the playful antics of a man-made humpback whale. The humpback can be viewed in the exhibit of Star Trek props now showing at the Monterey Bay Aquarium.

Harp master class series concludes with dual concerts

THE EIGHTH annual Susann McDonald Harp Master Class continues through Sunday, Nov. 30.

The internationally acclaimed harpist and teacher has chosen two harpists to give recitals on Friday, Nov. 28. She also plans a class recital on Saturday, Nov. 29.

Maria Casale of Los Angeles returns to the Carmel Mission Basilica to present a Friday, Nov. 28 harp recital at 8 p.m. Appearing also is harpist Kerstin Allvin of Detroit.

Casale studied with McDonald at the Juilliard School, receiving both bachelor's and master's degrees. Her credits include solo recitals at Lincoln Center and a debut recital in Steinway Hall in Los Angeles.

Casale was one of three finalists in the Ninth International Harp Competition in Israel in 1985. She will play harp sonatas by Houdy and Dussek, "Danse des Lutins" by Renie and "Impromptu" by Faure.

Allvin received her bachelor's degree from Indiana Unversity, under McDonald. She was chosen to represent her campus as a soloist at Carnegie Hall. Allvin is now completing her master's at the University of Michigan, studying with Lynne Aspnes. She has performed with the Detroit Symphony. Allvin has selected works by Caplet, Halffter, Granados and Sanzedo for the mission recital.

The McDonald Master Class concludes with a harp recital by all of the participants at 8 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 30 in Hidden Valley Theatre, Carmel Valley Road at Ford Road in Carmel Valley. Students and professionals from England, the United States and Asia will perform.

Admission to the Friday concert is free. Admission is $8 on Saturday night.

Tickets may be obtained at the door and from the Hidden Valley box office, 659-3115, and the following ticket outlets:

How To Do Anything Bookstore, Lobos Court on Ocean Avenue; Countrywide Crafts, The Barnyard, both Carmel; Prim and Proper, 533 Lighthouse Ave., Pacific Grove; Abinante Music Store, 425 Alvarado St., Monterey; Jim Gattis Menswear, 315 S. Main St., Salinas.

MARIA CASALE, soloist at Lincoln Center in New York, will perform during the Susann McDonald Harp Master Class.

KERSTIN ALLVIN of Detroit was chosen to represent Indiana University as a soloist at Carnegie Hall. She is among the harpists who will perform Saturday in Carmel Valley.

Sunday concert at the mission focuses on favorite compositions

'A TREASURY of Traditional Church Favorites" will be performed Sunday, Nov. 30 at the Carmel Mission Basilica. Admission is free to the 2:30 p.m. concert.

Sunday's performers will include Mary Margaret Graham, soprano; Marah Taylor, contralto; Joseph Griffith, bass; Tim Grady, tenor; Anthony Lacono and Dale Victorini, duo treble recorders; Dave Dally, trumpet; and William Zeitler, organ.

The musical treasury will feature performances of Panis Angelicus, Franck and Ave Maria from "Thais" by Massenet. Works of J.S. Bach scheduled to be presented include the "Little Fugue" in G minor, Seinem Schoepfer, Cantata No. 39; Domine Deus, Mass in G; Sheep May Safely Graze; Wir Eilen Mit Schwachen and My Heart Ever Faithful.

~~Among the~~ Handel works to be presented are Arm, Arm, Ye Brave and Let the Bright Seraphim.

Each of the performers has donated their services to the concert.

Mary Margaret Graham is a former member of the San Francisco Opera Company who has retired to live in Carmel. Taylor is a Carmel resident who studied at Brigham Young University and Fresno State where she was a soloist. She is now a soloist and member of I Cantori di Carmel.

Lacono resides in Salinas and is a self-taught musician. He plays recorder, saxophone and guitar. He graduated from the University of California at Berkeley with degrees in English and library science.

Also from Salinas is William Zeitler, organist. He has a degree in music from California Insitute of the Arts in Valencia and is church organist with Carmel Presbyterian and I Cantori.

Dave Dally is a local violinist who will surprise everyone as he plays the trumpet.

Griffith lives in Carmel and has studied in Los Angeles. He is a founding member of the I Cantori group and sings with them and the Camerata Singers.

Dale Victorini was born and raised in Salinas. He is a specialist in performing on all types of recorders and is a composer of music. He has published a song written on the text of the Twenty-Third Psalm.

Tim Grady resides in Pacific Grove and has sung with Hidden Valley productions as well as the Bach Festival Chorale. He presently sings with I Cantori di Carmel.

THEATER REVIEW

By James P. Kinney

If you can't say anything nice...

WHILE THAT CLASSIC piece of sage motherly advice — "If you can't say anything nice about a person, don't say anything at all" — is hardly a working rule of thumb that theater critics feel bound to obey, there is enough residual wisdom in it to give a person evaluating an amateur theatrical event some pause.

The musical revue, Broadway Babies, which opened this past weekend at the Ford Ord Cabaret Theatre is a musical potluck of 32 numbers from Broadway shows served up by seven attractive young women performers from this area, most of them in the military or with a military affiliation.

Director Michael Cheak explains in his heplful note in the program that he meant the show to be his chance to thank and showcase some of the young female talent he has been privileged to work with the past four years.

Utilizing a truncated staircase setting and a solid three-piece accompaniment, the performers sang musical numbers from such shows as Kiss Me Kate, Fiddler on the Roof, Hair, Mame, Chicago, South Pacific, Gypsy and many others, each number from a decidedly feminine point of view.

I liked the choice of songs. Broadway musicals are, after all, a solid part of our American heritage and ladies like "Addo Annie," "Nellie Forbush," "Adelaide," and "Mamma Rose" are as familiar a part of our national consciousness as Eleanor Roosevelt, Kate Hepburn, or Janis Joplin, even if the former first came into existence as musical comedy creations.

My over-all feeling at the intermission — 18 quick numbers into the evening's show — was that I had been invited to a musical program thrown by my daughter's college sorority. The young ladies were certainly attractive and earnest enough, the costumes were colorful and varied enough, and there was plenty of thigh and cleavage on display to make it clear these young ladies were not enrolled in any institute headed by Pat Robertson or Jerry Falwell.

What bothered me from almost the start of the show was something I have noticed for some time now as a singer and stage performer myself; namely, that our young female singers and actresses seem unlikely to deliver a song or scene very effectively unless they are projecting either fresh ingenues or coarse hookers.

Out of the rich wide spectrum of a normal woman's emotional possibilities to choose from, we get mostly the extremes of innocence or vulgar toughness. Vicki Connoll, Katherine Ankenman and Paulette Bittinger, for example, did a wonderful job on "Matchmaker" from Fiddler. Dressed in period costumes and glowing with exuberant, youthful expectancy, they lit up the stage as the three daughters of Tevye and Golde. Likewise with sisters Katherine and Karen Ankenman as "Louise" and "Baby June" singing "If Momma Was Married" from Gypsy.

On the other hand, the entire company was electric in "Cell Block Tango" from Chicago in which each individually explains how she "did in" a member or members of the male sex for various affronts to their womanhood. Streetwalker stuff. Likewise with Karen Ankenman's delivery of the title song from Cabaret.

Less successful were most of the evening's attempts to capture the subtle nuances of any normal woman's range of diverse emotions. Connoll's "I Hate Men" from Kiss Me Kate was a clear case of a girl singing a woman's song — petulant instead of outraged, strident where she needed to be determined. Suzanne McConnell's "Can't get a Man with a Gun" looked like hard work from first to final note, lacking most of the infectious fun and warm humor the song suggests.

Although the roots of the problem may be the fact that our compulsively sexist and unsubtle culture tends to ignore the emotional shadings between innocent girl and hard-assed hooker, the solution to some extent belongs in the hands of sensitive directors.

A case in point was the production of Evita I saw about a year ago at the same Ford Ord Cabaret Theater. The actress in the title role gave a thoroughly two-dimensional performance. She had all the hard-brassiness and none of the wily, rounded determination which had to be part of the emotional arsenal of a woman who rose from the streets to the height of political power in Argentina. She was in my opinion, poorly directed.

Even if they must be dragged screaming and kicking to a new point of view, directors must insist that younger performers give more variety in their interpretations. But our young singers and actresses have their work to do as well. They need to watch older, more experienced actresses on stage as well as women in real life situations more closely, studying them in all kinds of emotional states, using that inner eye and sensitivity for detail ambitious and intelligent performers all must employ to bring reality, honesty and subtle believability to their performances.

Most of the evening's performers had vocal problems in some of their songs and they were in almost every case correctible by better vocal techniques. The same old things singers hear: Good vocal quality starts in the diaphragm not in the vocal cords. If you are straining on high notes — Dear Lord, there was a lot of straining all evening long — and the song is well within your range, learn something about placement and work on it. Avoid jerkiness and breathiness when delivering lyrics by phrasing carefully and breathing properly.

The evening, of course, had some high points: Jennifer Carter's smoky sulkiness in "All That Jazz," the kind of thing that will race the motor of even middle-aged males; Rosanna Yadegari's depth of feeling in "Losing My Mind"; Bittinger's verve and power in "Rose" from Gypsy as well as her fine comic sense in "Adelaide's Lament."

But I would be remiss if I did not offer a final piece of advice to the young singers I saw and heard in Broadway Babies. It is, simply, let us into your song. Tough doesn't keep an audience for long. If there is vulnerability in the song, find where it is and let us hear it. Invite us into it; let us share it. Between one-third and one-half of the success of your vocal and physical delivery depends on what you let the audience bring to it. Some performers never learn that. Learn it right away or just as soon as you can. A well-delivered performance, vocal or otherwise, is always the result of a loving conspiracy between yourself and your audience.

Broadway Babies will run at the Ford Ord Cabaret Theatre until Dec. 13. For ticket information, call 649-5561.

Murder at the Howard Johnson's

Presented by Terpsichore Productions, the play features John Prejean, Linda Prejean and John Macy.

The production has been held over for a final performance on Saturday, Nov. 29. Curtain is at 8 p.m. at the Trail and Saddle Club House, located at the end of East Garzas Road in Carmel Valley. Tickets are $7. Cocktails, soda, coffee and snacks will be available from 7 p.m. on.

To get to the Carmel Valley Trail and Saddle Club from the peninsula or Salinas, turn right on Boronda Road off Carmel Valley Road and continue on Boronda until reaching East Garzas. The club is located approximately one-quarter mile down East Garzas Road. For information or reservations, call 659-2882.

It Had to Be You

It Had to Be You, a comedy which originally starred its authors, Renee Taylor and Joseph Bologna, will conclude its run this weekend at the Studio Theatre Restaurant, Dolores between Ocean and Seventh in Carmel.

Roselle Weinfield and Dick Vreeland portray, respectively, Theda Blau, a failed actress, health food nut, analyst and would-be playwright who wants to find love and success in New York, and Vito Pignoli, a hugely successful TV commercial director. By holding him hostage in her apartment on a snowy Christmas Eve, she somehow manages to convince him to be her partner — both in dramaturgy and marriage.

It Had to Be You runs Thursday through Sunday, Nov. 27-29, with dinner at 7 p.m. and curtain at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are $26.50 for dinner and show, exclusive of tax and gratuity Tickets: 624-1661.

Singers, foodstuffs sought for 'Christmas in Carmel'

THE CITY of Carmel's ninth annual Christmas in Carmel program will take place 3 to 5 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 6 at Sunset Center, Ninth and San Carlos. This is an old-fashioned Christmas gathering with a musical program on stage from 3 to 4 p.m.

There will be a choir on stage to sing several carols, but the audience is invited to join in on most of the singing. Several children's choirs will sing and Santa arrives at the end of the musical program to pass out candy canes to the little ones.

From 4 to 5 p.m. there will be a party in the patio with free cookies and punch for all.

If anyone would like to join the choir on stage, there will be one rehearsal 7:30 to 9 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 3, on stage at Sunset Center. All singers are welcome.

The audience is encouraged to bring canned goods to be placed under the tree in the lobby for distribution by the Salvation Army.

WHAT'S PLAYING AT THE MOVIES

BELIZAIRE THE CAJUN: Armand Assante portrays Belizaire, the object of a vigilante frame-up designed to drive away the Cajuns for their land. Set in 19th century Louisiana Bayou country, the suspenseful tale is written and directed by Glen Pitre, himself a Cajun. At the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

CHILDREN OF A LESSER GOD: Mark Medoff's Tony Award-winning play provides the basis for this film. William Hurt portrays an unorthodox teacher of the deaf who falls in love with a beautiful, angry, isolated young woman who is his student (Marlee Matlin). Matlin, like all of the actors portraying deaf characters in the film, is hearing-impaired. Randa Haines directs. Rated R. At the Crossroads Cinema. 624-2792.

THE COLOR OF MONEY: Tom Cruise is Vince Lauria, the young pool player who wants to be the best there is, and Paul Newman is the Machiavellian manager who wants a piece of the action. Martin Scorsese directs. Rated R. At Cinema 70. 373-4777.

CROCODILE DUNDEE: Paul Hogan stars as an Australian hunter and Linda Kozlowski is the woman who lures him from the outback to teeming New York in this lighthearted romantic adventure. Rated PG-13. At the State Three Cinemas. 372-4555.

FIREWALKER: Chuck Norris and Lou Gossett are soldiers of fortune seeking a cache of gold and jewels in this comedy/adventure. Rated PG. At the Valley Cinema. 624-5111.

THE NUTCRACKER: Director Carroll Ballard oversees this version of the favorite ballet. The dance is choreographed by Kent Stowell and performed by his company, the Pacific Northwest Ballet, using sets and costumes by Maurice Sendak. At the Crossroads Cinema. 624-2792.

SONG OF THE SOUTH: Live action footage and animated backgrounds and characters are blended in this 1946 Disney production, an interpretation of the tales of Uncle Remus. Rated G. At the Regency Theatre. 375-6696.

STAR TREK IV — THE VOYAGE HOME: In the 23rd century, the world is on the edge of destruction and its only salvation lies in the past. William Shatner, Leonard Nimoy and DeForest Kelley reprise their roles, as does much of the supporting cast from the original TV series. The feature includes scenes shot at the Monterey Bay Aquarium. Nimoy co-wrote and directed. Rated PG. At the State Three Cinemas. 372-4555.

WHEN FATHER WAS AWAY ON BUSINESS: 1985 Cannes Film Festival winner. Rated PG. At the Carmel Village Theatre. 624-5341.

THE WRAITH: Young man (dead) comes back to life to avenge his brutal murder in this horror adventure. Charlie Sheen, Nick Cassavetes, Sherilyn Fenn and Randy Quain are the stars. Rated PG. At the State Three Cinemas. 372-4555.

Choral Society schedules 'Music of Christmas'

The Monterey Peninsula Choral Society will present its annual "Music of Christmas" concerts Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 12, 13 and 14, at the Carmel Mission Basilica at 8 p.m.

The featured works this Christmas will be Antonio Vivaldi's Kyrie, Gloria and Credo.

Guest artists for the concerts will include Helen Dilworth, soprano; Rachel Louis, alto; Pauline Thomas, harpsichordist; and Rosamond Rogers Crowley, organist.

Tickets for the concerts are $9 at the door but are available for a special price in advance.

Advance tickets can be obtained by calling 394-6351, or by writing P.O. Box 272, Carmel, CA 93921. If you are ording tickets by mail, specify the number of tickets and the night you wish to attend. Enclose a check and a self-addressed stamped envelope. Advance ticket price is $8 each.

Forest Theater season announced

THE 1987 season of productions has been announced by the Forest Theater Guild.

The season will open June 11 with staging of the Lerner and Loewe musical, Brigadoon. Forest Theater Guild President Hamish Tyler will direct Brigadoon, which will play Thursday through Saturday evenings until July 11.

Director James Dunn will take a "Spaghetti Western" approach with Shakespeare's comedy, The Taming of the Shrew, which runs from July 23 until Aug. 23. Dunn is noted for his imaginative treatment of Shakespeare, including a Silicon Valley version of A Midsummer Night's Dream staged at Monterey Peninsula College.

The season closes with a traditional interpretation of Shakespeare's Julius Caesar, directed by Stephen Harris. Julius Caesar will run in repertory with a production of Scapino by the GroveMont Theater from Aug. 26 through Oct. 11.

Season tickets will be available. For further information, contact Jeff DeMarco at 646-9219.

MUSIC CORNER

By Jo Ann La Torra

Organ series shines

ONE OF THE MOST interesting concert series on the peninsula appears also to be one of the most under-rated: to wit, the Monarch Concert Series at First United Methodist Church in Pacific Grove. This is the only series in the area devoted to the organ and, although it attracts some of the local organists, the general public has stayed away in droves.

Once upon a time, the organ was the King of Instruments. Cities had municipal organists, theaters had him-who-played the Mighty Wurlitzer. Churches prided themselves on their instruments, and concert halls had organs.

The organ was J.S. Bach's favorite instrument; he was a famous virtuoso as well as a ranking authority on organ design. In fact, the Baroque era has a downright embarrassment of riches in organ literature, a body of work that dates back at least to the 15th century. Most important composers have written for the instrument. Among popular composers, Mendelssohn wrote some wonderful organ sonatas; Brahms wrote moving chorale preludes, among other things; Franck may have done his best work for the organ.

There is a renascense in organ building, and pro- and con-mechanical action persons face off toe to toe. Many of the fine builders are in this hemisphere — we do not have to go to Europe to buy an organ.

And yet a concert series featuring excellent artists on this noble instrument may expire from lack of support in this music-loving community. We are facing a communal black eye.

The organ at the "Butterfly" church is one of the nicest pipe organs in the area — some say the nicest. Organs are in a bad state of repair here — pun intended. Two prestigious churches have organs on which many of the pipes don't work. Historically important churches make do with abysmally poor electronic instruments. The new Casavant pipe organ at Carmel Mission is, of course, something for those parishoners to be very proud of, and it is greatly to be hoped that it will also be used for concerts in the future. If an audience can be found.

This tirade was brought on by a stunning concert presented Sunday afternoon by Reiko Oda-Lane, director of music at Park Boulevard Presbyterian Church in Oakland.

J.S. Bach opened and closed — the G minor Fantasia and Fugue, BWV 542, and the C minor Passacaglia and Fugue, BWV 582. Three marvellous chorale preludes of Bach's great predecessor, Buxtehude, and an effective Voluntary on "Old 100" by Henry Purcell rounded out the Baroque offerings.

The charm of Charles Widor is lost on me, but most organists love him. Oda-Lane played with style and aplomb the Allegro from the Sixth Organ Symphony, a devilishly difficult piece.

From the 20th century was a wonderful suite by Jean Langlais, Hommage a Frescobaldi (1951).

Oda-Lane is a brilliant organist, a solid musician, and can be very exciting when the music calls for it. Her Baroque playing was restrained, with clear, well-defined lines, but the Widor and Langlais were full of fire. Her registrations are extremely colorful, showing off the organ, but never leaving the bounds of good taste or obscuring the structure of the piece.

The Langlais suite closed with a piece of pedal solo. The audience is usually invited to sit where they can see the artists, but I stayed put, and I'm glad I did. As long as I didn't see it done, I don't have to believe anyone has that kind of pedal technique. Especially anyone who probably has to stand on tiptoe to hit 5 feet.

SUNDAY NIGHT brought the Monterey County Symphony, under Clark Suttle, with cellist Nathaniel Rosen, to Monterey.

An unusual, but effective, bit of programming gave us Haydn and two 20th century works, but the people behind me needn't have worried — they were definitely not "far out."

Alan Hovhaness' Second Symphony, "The Mysterious Mountain," opened the program. It carries the opus number of 132, and dates from the composer's 44th year (1955) — this is a truly prolific composer. The work was beautifully played, with rich string sound and lovely long lines. Unfortunately, the piece runs out of content before it is over. Hovhaness' gift is for the sensuous melodic line and open, modal harmonies. His rhythm is uninteresting, and after awhile, one begins to long for some kind of movement, some direction.

Rosen joined the orchestra in Haydn's great cello concerto. Suttle has a nice way with Haydn, but this night it was not enough. Only the second movement truly rose above the level of adequacy. It was slow for a Haydn Adagio, but it had a warm, lyrical line. The first movement needed to be more graceful and more rhythmically incisive; the last movement needed more verve. Rondo form is an inherently comical one, with its recurring phrases, and no one has ever done it better than Haydn, but it just didn't quite come off Sunday night. The cadenzas were very well played.

Unfortunately, I had to miss the Sibelius Second Symphony due to a seasonal ailment that made breathing difficult, and hence impaired my ability to concentrate.

Hospice Tree of Life illuminated on Monday

Gift envelopes for the Hospice Tree of Life event are now available at most local banks and savings and loans, as well as at Longs Drug Store in Seaside, according to Robert Brower, president of the Hospice Board of Directors.

The Tree of Life will be a commemorative light display over Monterey during the holidays. Community members will honor their loved ones through $10 gifts to Hospice. Each gift lights a light for a specially remembered person.

The 25-foot display will be mounted atop the Sheraton Hotel throughout December.

The lighting ceremony will take place Monday, Dec. 1, at the Sheraton's Portola Plaza. Congressman Leon Panetta, honorary chairman for the event, will light the display at 5:30 p.m.

"During the holidays people often want to remember loved ones they may have lost, or honor special people in their lives, and the Tree of Life will provide us with an excellent way to do that," says Brower.

A book inscribed with each honored name will be placed in the Sheraton Hotel lobby.

For more information about how to participate, call the Hospice at 372-6565.

Sounds of Christmas to fill Steinbeck Forum

The Sound of Christmas will be summoned on Monday, Dec. 1 in the Steinbeck Forum of the Monterey Conference Center.

Theodore Gargiulo, music director and conductor of the Pancultural Orchestra and of the Defense Language Institute will perform works by Cacavas, Tzchaikowsky, Haydn and Anderson at 7:30 p.m.

Guests will be ushered into the forum to the music of the DLI Brass Ensemble at 7 p.m.

At a reception following the program, this Brass Ensemble under the direction of Dan Kuntz will accompany costumed singers in favorite Christmas Carols. The audience will be invited to join in the singing, and in sampling many different Christmas desserts from around the world.

The evening's festivity is sponsored by the World Religious and Cultures Office and the Language Schools of the Defense Language Institute, the Chapel communities of Presidio of Monterey, and the City of Monterey. Admission is free. For further information call 647-5110.

Resident artists program explained

The California Arts Council has scheduled 36 public workshops across the state to invite participation in and to explain the Artists in Resident Program for 1987-88.

A local workshop is scheduled for Tuesday, Dec. 2, at The YWCA, Watsonville 340 E. Beach St. and is sponsored by the Cultural Councils of Santa Cruz and Monterey counties.

Andrea Temkin, artists in the schools coordinator, will explain this statewide program which helps non-profit organizations and public agenices place professional artists at schools, art centers, community centers, hospitals, correctional and other facilities.

The grant application process, eligiblity, restrictions, and preparation of application will be fully discussed and examples of successful artists in residence projects will be shown.

Eligible artists can be from many disciplines such as dance, theater, music, photography, literature, poetry, painting and sculpture. Non-profit organizations considering having artists work with them on a project are also encouraged to attend the workshop.

Projects last from 3 to 11 months, and artists receive $1,300 for 80 hours of project time per month.

Application deadlines are: Artists in Schools — Feb. 13, 1987; Artists in Communities and Social Institutions — March 2, 1987.

The California Arts Council was established to promote artistic awareness and participation in California. It is a state agency which provides grants and technical assistance to artists and to nonprofit arts organizations.

Grant applications are reviewed and rated by outside peer panels, and receive final approval from the 11-member council. 1986 marks the 10th anniversary of the California Arts Council.

December 31 is the deadline for submitting entries for the State Fish and Game Commission's 1986 photography award contest.

Anyone can enter the contest, but only pictures of live fish and wildlife species in their native habitats and pictures of the natural environment in the state will be considered.

Black-and-white and color prints will be accepted in seven regular and two special categories. Regular categories are fish, invertebrates, birds, mammals, reptiles and amphibians, the natural environment, and — new this year — native plants. Special categories this year are raptors and seascapes.

Judging will be a panel of experts selected by the commission.

More information on the program is available from the Fish and Game Commission at 1416 Ninth St., Sacramento, CA 95814.

Christmas Marketplace evokes Dickensian spirit

THE CHARM of a European marketplace will be recreated at Custom House Plaza, near Fisherman's Wharf, Monterey during the annual Old Fashioned Dickens Christmas Marketplace. This arts and crafts show, will take place 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 28-30.

Craftsmen from all over the state will demonstrate and sell their wares suitable for holiday giving. Featured crafts demonstrations include spinning, wood turning, inlay, papermaking, origami and scrimshaw.

Hand-painted clothing, jewelry, authentic Indian pottery, embossed monotypes as well as wildlife paintings and watercolors of the peninsula will be displayed.

Raptor Research, a non-profit organization devoted to protecting endangered raptors, will benefit from this annual holiday event. The organization is largely dependent on public contributions to continue.

Admission is free. Parking is available at Monterey city lots surrounding the plaza, and the shuttle bus stops at the show location.

T.L. 'Stoney' Harby expresses his Indian heritage

By ANNE PAPINEAU

T. L. "Stoney" Harby, who makes his home on a ranch south of Carmel, says of his life "I've never known myself other than as an artist."

Harby's career has followed many paths, but has remained true to the pursuit of art. His occupations have included combat artist, technical illustrator and matte artist for Hollywood studios.

A new collection of his Native American-themed paintings will be shown Friday through Sunday, Nov. 28-30, during the American Indian Arts and Crafts Show. Admission is free to the exhibit, open 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily at the American Legion Hall, Eighth and Dolores, Carmel.

Harby paints Western and Native American scenes that draw from his Montana heritage.

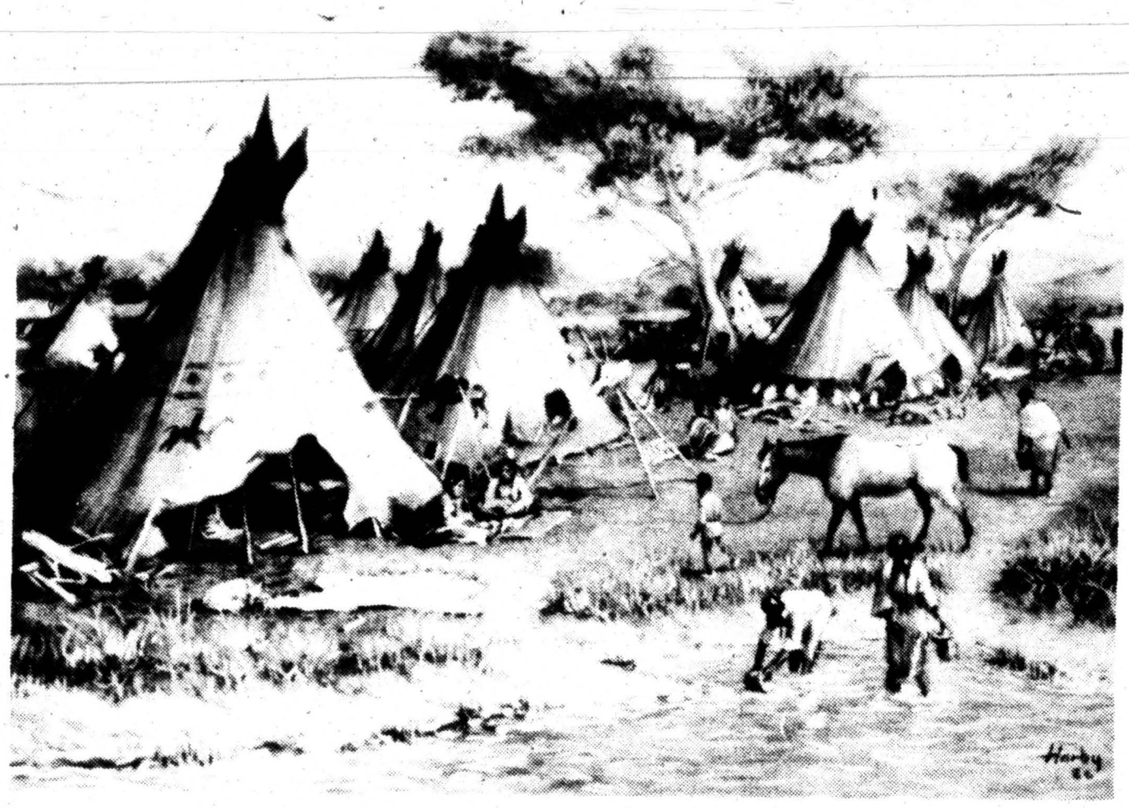
"Most people paint from Curtis' photographs of the Indians," Harby observed. "My paintings all come out of my head."

The artist describes himself as a "watered-down" Indian. His grandmother, a member of the Gros Ventre tribe, was born outside old Fort Benton. His mother attended Indian schools at Fort Shaw, Montana, and Rapid City, South Dakota.

Harby's father was of Norwegian extraction and met his mother at a barn dance when he was a line rider for the Montana Land and Cattle Co.

Since childhood, Harby has been fascinated with "the mystique of Indian life." Beginning at age 8, he resided for two years on the Makah Indian Reservation at Neah Bay, Wash. During this period during the late 1920s, he was able to attend the potlaches — or ceremonial feasts — of the Pacific Northwest tribes.

HARBY, who resides in a cabin on a Big Sur ranch, has pursued art all his life. His professions have included combat artist, technical illustrator and Hollywood matte artist.



T.L. "STONEY" Harby paints American Indians and their way of life, relying on his own memories of a childhood spent on the reservations.

"It is the connection to earth forces that holds me to the Indian culture," he explained. Since his youth Harby has saved the Native American artifacts that he unearthed.

"I've found thousands of artifacts. I study constantly and have more than 40 books on Indians. I'm fascinated by the crafts, the skills they had with early tools. They were natural artists," Harby said.

A recognized authority on Native American crafts, Harby is a contributor to such publications as Indian-Artifact magazine. His articles are illustrated with photos of the arrowheads, scrapers, knife blades and arrow-making tools that he has discovered. In addition to his own searches, he also participates in local digs sponsored by archeological societies.

Harby's mixed heritage does not blind him to the evils perpetrated by settlers against the Native Americans.

"Out of over 250 treaties, 90 percent were abrogated by the whites," he noted.

"Always an artist," Harby began working professionally in that field while still a teenager. Following the bombing of Pearl Harbor, he enlisted in the U.S. Marine Corps and was assigned the job of combat artist.

"The combat artist does the same as everybody else, plus draws pictures," he explained. Harby replicated combat scenes in both watercolor and black and white sketches

The Monterey Peninsula College Photography Department, headed by Roger Fremier, will conduct its third annual photography contest from 6 to 8 p.m. Friday, Dec. 5 at the Evans Gallery in Sunset Center, Carmel.

Judges are Pat Friedman-Ross, Dick Garrod and Clinton Smith. On Sunday, Nov. 30, the judges will be making comments from 5 to 6 p.m. in Lecture Forum 101 at the college. Admission is free.

The competition is open to all residents of Monterey and Santa Cruz counties and to all Monterey Peninsula Photographic Workshop Participants. Prints of any size must be submitted on 16-by-20 mat board and should not have been published or exhibited locally.

Contestants will be judged in both professional and amateur divisions in the catagories of color and black and white. There is also a youth division. First and second place awards will be given in each division and category.

Prints may be delivered the the MPC Photo Lab (CSC-4) between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 29. There is a $5 fee for each print entered.

The best 60 prints will be hung for exhibit in the show which opens Wednesday, Dec. 3. The show reception is Friday, Dec. 5 fom 6-8 p.m. Contest entries will remain on exhibit at the Evans Gallery through Dec. 30, when the show closes.

For more information regarding contest rules and to obtain entry forms, contact Roger Fremier in the MPC Photography Division, 646-4071.

while stationed in Okinawa, Japan and China.

Courtesy of the G.I. Bill, Harby was able to attend the Chouinard Art Institute in Los Angeles and later, both the Ecole des Beaux Art and the Academie Julian in Paris.

"Art saturation" is how Harby describes those years, during which he exhibited at the Gallerie de Seine, Grand Salon, Salon d'Hiver and Salon d'Autome.

Harby married a Frenchwoman and returned to California. He found employment in Los Angeles as a matte artist with the Sam Goldwyn Studios, Warner Brothers and Paramount. It was at the latter studio that he spent a solid year painting more than 50 backgrounds for the award-winning Cecil B. DeMille epic, The Ten Commandments.

"There were only 15 matte artists in Hollywood, we had a very tight union," Harby said. "It offered very good pay and was very precise work," he added. Other films for which Harby executed matte paintings were Gunfight at the OK Corral, Joan of Arc with Ingrid Bergman and The Bishop's Wife with David Niven and Loretta Young.

Harby moved to the Monterey Peninsula in 1957 as a technical illustrator for the Firestone guided missile project. The project, shrouded in secrecy, was undertaken in the Ordway Building in Monterey.

When Harby was 17 he visited the log cabin that was the home of Western artist Charlie Russell in Great Falls, Mont. He determined at that time that he, too, would one day become "a Western artist with a log cabin."

Today Harby is caretaker on "a mile-by-two-mile ranch" near Big Sur, which he shares with 40 horses, 160 cows and "four happy bulls."

"My sponsor just wants me to paint," he said, and he does just that, painting in his log cabin, surrounded by his collection of Indian artifacts that he uses for reference.

According to Harby, "It's just like paradise."

ART NOTES

By Sam Colburn

Mammoth art

SEVERAL YEARS AGO a man by the name of Cristo wrapped the coast of Australia, or part of it, in cloth. He thus created a monumental sculpture. This started a new trend of mammoth art. Some artists have created "Earthworks." These undertakings are not permanent. Indeed, Mr. Cristo's beautiful red curtain hung across a gap in Rifle, Colorado, lasted only half an hour. He also put pink panties around the Florida Keys. His exciting "Running Fence" across the rolling hills north of San Francisco was in place for a long time. Man has built a number of other works for utilitarian reasons which are sculptures also, like the Boulder Dam or the Golden Gate Bridge.

Another work very much in the large scale is "Amber Waves of Grain" which was on display over at the Custom House Plaza recently. It consists of 35,000 ceramic cones. They are all the same height and affixed to the bricks. This represents the total number of armaments possessed by the United States, and was made by a young Denver artist, Barbara Donarchy. As one looked across this project there was the feeling given of a field of grain with different patches of varying value.

Down at the La Jolla Museum of Contemporary Art there is another large exhibit of some 50,000 nickles each with a match head attached.

GETTING BACK to what we might call easel-sized art, I was very happy to see the work of all the art teachers who are on the faculty at Monterey Peninsula College being exhibited at the Pacific Grove Art Center. No particular movement is indicated. This is very refreshing as I think there is a dominance of certain trends at many colleges and universities. All nine of these people have their own imagery.

Alex Gonzales has a superb head in collage named "Untitled No.3." Jeremy Jerregan shows three sculptures which are concerned with nuclear disaster. I think that "California Girl No.2," by Joe Tanous, has beautiful color, and also a strange surreal quality. Again may I say that we are very fortunate to have a faculty with such diverse ways of seeing.

Bruce Klein is showing in hallways of the Pacific Grove Art Center. He works in acrylic on canvas and on paper, and in charcoal on paper. Mr. Klein has a great affinity for our California hills. This empathetic feeling comes through very strongly in "Mt. Diablo." The line and sweep of our countryside is caught in his charcoals. Two of the oils are more abstract and looser than the others. "Black Snake Ridge," for instance, is a painting where the color speaks for itself. Obviously he is breaking with his old form.

The paintings of Barbara Burritt are displayed in the Elmarie Dyke gallery. There is evident mysticism in her oils. I was interested in the three large prieces. The subject matter is not completely discernable at first glance, but as you look the forms develop. They seem to exist in an ethereal world withough time and space.

OVER AT the Carmel Art Association there is a very large one-man show by Gerald Wasserman in the Beardsley Room. Although I have never been to that country, I would have said, this is Italy. There is a voluptuous quality which, in my mind, I associate with that terrain. These are all oils, on paper or on canvas. His feeling is idyllic. I liked "Interior with an Armadio" especially because of his use of subtle warm and cool colors. Another work is "Evening Mediation." The figure is simply handled, and the bars of warm color in the cloud function very well. There is a feeling of comple serenity in Waserman's work.

In the large gallery of the Association, Barclay Ferguson is represented by the largest painting that I have seen in these parts. It take up the entire rear wall. It is called, "Moss Landing," but nary a boat nor a reflection in water is to be seen. This is the other side of the story — across the street, so to speak. The painting is a section of the Pacific Gas and Electric power plant. The graphic impact is intense. The handling of gouache is such that I will borrow a term used for another medium. It is a "trompe l'oeil."

Over in Pebble Beach in the Mall at the Lodge the new Coast Gallery is featuring the paintings of Mary Titus and the sculpture of Loet Vanderveen. In her use of whales as subject matter Mary is in virgin waters. I, at least, have only seen renderings defining these mammals as a biological species. She uses space well. The whale forms are large, and, it is my opinion, the paintings would show most effectively on large walls and viewed from some distance. The sculptural pieces of Loet Vanderveen are cast in bronze. This is sophisticated work of limited casting. In the line of wearable art the gallery is showing the sculptural jewelry of Gail and Greg Appleby.

Peninsula art museum seeks docent volunteers

This winter the Docent Council of the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art will search for art-interested doers as they accept applications for docent training.

An eight-week orientation program designed to acquaint participants with the varied aspects of M.P.M.A. docenting will begin 10 a.m. to noon Monday, Jan. 12 and will continue on consecutive Mondays through March 2.

With 3,185 volunteer hours to their credit so far this year, the 37 active docents serve as volunteer personnel, conducting tours for both adults and children, tea cup tours for senior citizens and hospital patients. They lead Creative Response, an art appreciation course for fourth- and fifth-grade school children, provide assistance with installation of exhibits, research and registration.

"There are no set requirements," according to Joanne Honegger, docent council chairman. "Hospital auxiliary, teaching, art or art-history, or other museum experience might be helpful, but none are mandatory. The only real requirements are good feet and a willingness to learn. We try to teach as completely as possible about the museum and what it offers, about the docents, what we do and how we do it. Then the real training begins, the challenge of learning about art, and that goes on forever."

Applications are available at the museum or can be had, along with additional information, by calling Pat Burd, docent training chairman, 659-3532; Virginia Thomas, co-chairman, 624-6186; or Joanne Honegger, 624-5476.

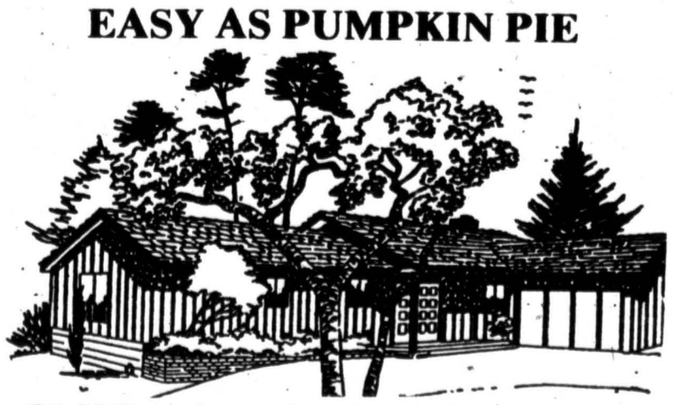
WE'RE PROUD AS PILGRIMS

TO OFFER this smartly designed estate home in a private wooded section of Carmel's Hatton Fields, along with its luxurious one-bedroom guest house. Set on one acre of beautifully landscaped grounds, this fine home offers 3500 square feet of living space, with spacious living room, dining room, family room, and three bedrooms. The guest house has living room, bedroom, galley, and bath. $875,000.

EASY AS PUMPKIN PIE



TO BUY this immaculate three-bedroom home on a quiet cul-de-sac in Pebble Beach, not far from Monterey Peninsula Country Club. Absolutely ideal for the small family in location, size, and amenities, it has been completely done over with new kitchen, baths, carpeting, flooring, and paint. Three bedrooms, two up-to-date baths, and a large fenced yard for toddlers and pets. Now $219,000, and you'll have to look hard to find a better value!

BE THANKFUL

YOU CAN HAVE your choice of two wonderful homesites like these...one on the Pebble Beach "Gold Coast," and the other in Carmel's desirable south of Ocean Avenue area. The Pebble Beach property is the last undeveloped lot in this area of well-established homes. It slopes gently from the 17-Mile Drive to the 13th tee of the Pebble Beach golf links, and it's about two acres in size. $1,450,000. The Carmel lot is about 6000 square feet, meaning it's a lot and a half. There aren't many lots available any more in this part of Carmel...enough said! $260,000.

A VINTAGE HOME IN P.G.

JUST LISTED...a turn-of-century classic offering period touches that will be sure to captivate anyone seeking a home with much charm. You'll be struck first with the excellent condition of the interior, then you'll admire the beautiful wainscoting with its dish rails, the built-in sideboard with glass doors in the dining room, and the cheery fireplace. Three roomy bedrooms with lovely wall coverings, and two baths. Single car garage. $260,000.

VIEW

AN OLDER home in Carmel Highlands on a one-acre site with a superb panorama of the ocean. Large living room, dining room, den, three bedrooms, plus very attractive guest house. $300,000.

Suicide Prevention seeks volunteers

If you are someone who can listen, understand and give calm, competent and gentle support to a distressed person, the Suicide Prevention Center will train you to become a member of a supportive team of volunteers helping people on a crisis line.

Crisis line volunteers serve an average of four hours per week, six months after training.

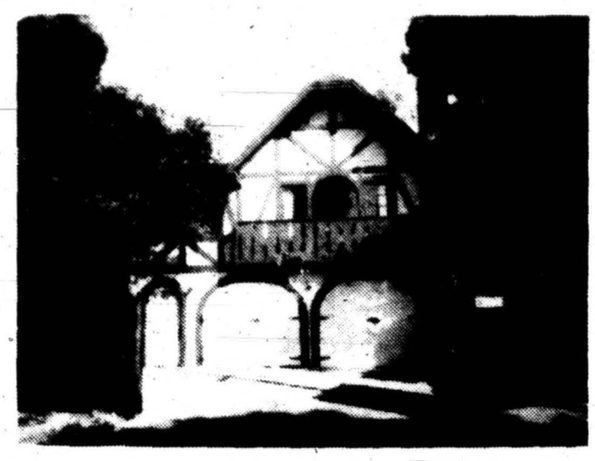
Volunteers are also needed to assist with the fund-raising committee and speakers' bureau. For more information or an application, call 375-6966, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. After 4 p.m. and on weekends, call 649-8008 or 424-1425.

Alzheimer's Disease addressed

A support group for caregivers of persons with Alzheimer's Disease and related disorders meets from 1:30 to 3 p.m. every other Thursday in the library at the Monterey County Health Department office, 1270 Natividad Road, Salinas.

The group leader is Mary Moran, M.S.W., M.S.G., geriatric social work specialist. For information, call 424-0946.

CARMEL ENGLISH TUDOR



The "feeling" of this 3 bedroom, 2 bath authentic Tudor is one of spaciousness beyond its actual square footage. And, because it is built over the extra large 2-car garage there is unusual privacy while still being bright and airy! There are even several peeks of ocean blue. Only 7 years old and an excellent floor plan, this home features parquet floor entry, vaulted wood ceilings, used brick fireplace, thermopane windows and the possibilities of a 4th bedroom and 3rd bath. Did I forget to mention this south of Ocean Avenue location? $349,000.

CARMEL VALLEY LOT GOLF COURSE VIEW

This ½ acre lot overlooks the new golf course, Carmel Valley Ranch, at Mid Valley. The building pad is slightly sloping and the utilities are at the curb. This lot is not subject to the moratoriums. Priced to sell! $95,000.

Costumes exhibited at Doud House

The Costume Committee of the Monterey History and Art Association will show a collection of vintage clothing at historic Doud House, located at Van Buren and Scott streets in Monterey.

The exhibit is titled "The Night of Dec. 24, 1910" and relates a two-part story — "I in my Hold-downs and Mama in her Peignoir" and "Fancy Dress, Ready at Last!"

These depict the activities of two families on Christmas Eve. One, at home with the children, enjoys the fireside. The other scene captures a couple dressed for a formal party. Old Monterey families donated the outfits.

Admission is free to the exhibit, shown 2 to 4 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays through December. For details, call 372-2608.

WHEN YOU CAN AFFORD TO LIVE ANYWHERE WHY LIVE ANYWHERE ELSE

You've waited a lifetime, and now the opportunity is here — opening to the 4th green and 5th tee of Monterey Peninsula Country Club's Shore Course in Pebble Beach, with ocean expanses beyond, this sumptuous new contemporary is spacious yet intimate, warm yet cosmopolitan. Local architects Bredthauer/Curran have created a stunning statement in natural redwood and marble, copper and elegant tile, wall and floor coverings; a liberating kitchen (which includes Subzero and Thermador, triple Jennair and Kitchenaid), hideaway library/study, three bedroom suites, including a master suite that defies comparison. Plan ample time to inspect the impeccably crafted detail of this newly-completed masterpiece — living area totals approximately 4,000 square feet, and the views are limitless. Well-worth the original asking price of $1,100,000, but now reduced an amazing $125,000 to $975,000!

CHOICE CARMEL VIEWS CHOICE

We currently feature 3 excellent homes in the Carmel Views area, all with Pt. Lobos views, yet each with individual styles and amenities. Select a gracious European-style 3 bedroom residence, with miles-apart privacy, and a circular staircase to a unique observation deck. Or, consider a California contemporary home with sharp artist's studio or guest quarters, plus 3 extra-spacious bedrooms, glorious grounds with gazebo. Or, ponder our third home, a Mediterranean Villa with pool, cul-de-sac privacy and multiple decks, for a grand 4 bedroom residence. From $423,500; call to preview all 3 homes.

CARMEL SPACIOUS PLEASE COME IN

...it's hard to appreciate the amenities of this newer 2800 square foot Carmel residence thru the screen of trees. Inside, golden oak floors pave an impressive welcome to the 36 foot gallery entry. Artfully designed for family living or gracious entertaining, the oversized living room features a massive raised-hearth brick fireplace. An opulent master suite enjoys a second fireplace, much wardrobe space, and a bath/dressing area with double sink, Japanese-style open shower, a sunken tub and skylights. The kitchen abounds in delightful surprises! Carmel-by-the-Sea, South of Ocean Avenue, and oversized lot — the right home in the right location — offered at $379,000.

We're located in the heart of Carmel-by-the-Sea—open daily 9-5

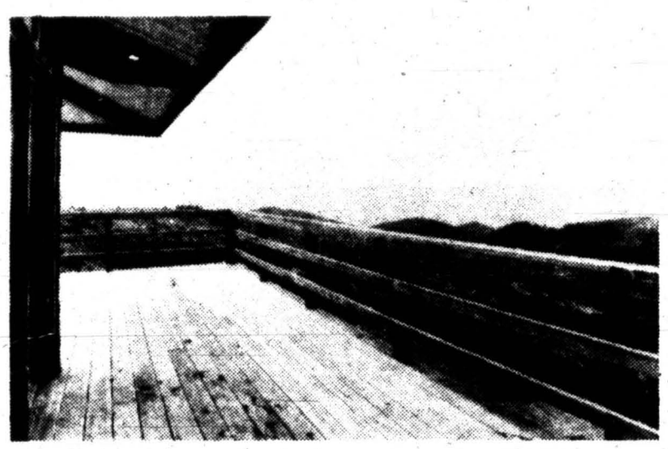
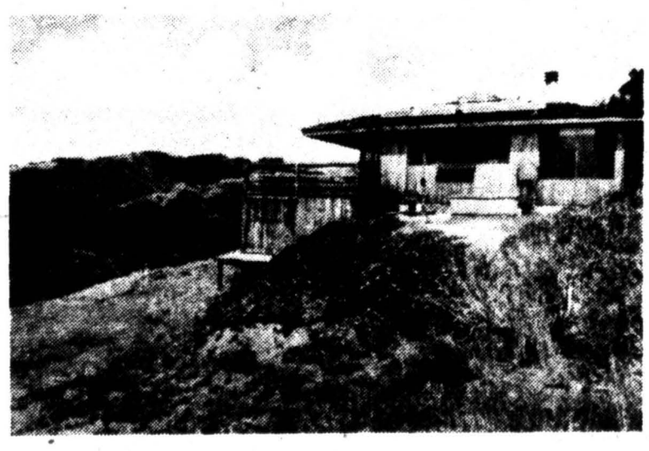
Atop Pfeiffer Ridge In The Big Sur Country

A pathway threads through oaks to reach the entrance deck of this shake-roofed, redwood home featuring fine craftsmanship, interior use of stone combined with native woods and window walls opening to another seaward-facing deck.



Running along the entire west side of the house, this deck provides outdoor enjoyment of panoramic view encompassing the Ocean, coastline and mountains of the Big Sur Country.

A skylight in beamed wood ceiling, paneled walls, floor of wide pine boards, window walls and stone fireplace are in the living room which extends into a compact kitchen with handcrafted cabinets topped by stone counters. Stone also backs the stove using propane gas. Off this central area, and with both floor and countertop of stone, the bathroom features a sunken tub in a windowed alcove permitting view of hills and ocean. The two carpeted bedrooms also are off the living room and have similar walls and ceiling as well as ample closets and built-in bookcases and bed platforms.



Electric power is provided by the solar panels located on the roof, also by a propane generator. Water comes from a mutual system and privacy is assured by a five-acre site reached by a weather-stabilized road inside a locked gate close to Highway One approximately 25 miles south of Carmel. Price of this restful haven amid hills sloping to the sea over which the sun sets in glowing glory is $225,000.
